Power supply for community of 100,000

$10 million hydroelectric plant proposed for S.D. area

Plans were revealed today for the construction of a $10 million hydroelectric plant in San Dimas that would supply enough daily power to satisfy the demands of a community of 100,000 persons.

The plans are part of a $100,000 study approved by directors of the Metropolitan Water District. They call for an opinion on the construction of eight projects throughout the Southland, of which the San Dimas project would be the largest.

John H. Lauten, general manager of the MWD, said the district could generate power cheaply at points where there is a steep water fall in the water distribution system.

Not only would the plants provide inexpensive power, they would also serve to break the pressure of swiftly moving water. Lauten explained that before water can be distributed its "head" must be broken.

He said that in many cases some of the facilities already are in existence, and this would cut construction costs considerably.

If the projects are approved, the MWD would negotiate with existing power companies for marketing the power, Lauten said.

"The money we could derive from the leasing of power could pay for the plants in less than 10 years," he explained.

In San Dimas, the plant would be built next to a pressure control structure which is already under construction on MWD property near the San Dimas Canyon Park, at a cost of $4½ million.

The San Dimas plant, if approved, would have a power of 16.8 megawatts, enough to supply 25,000 homes with electricity on a daily basis, according to preliminary estimates.

The study will consider the contruction of eight plants with a total capacity of 52 megawatts, at a cost of $37 million.

In addition to San Dimas, plants are being considered at Lake Matthews in Riverside county, at the Yorba Linda Control station in Orange County, at the Olinda control structure, the Foothill Feeder control structure at Castaic Lake, the Sepulveda Canyon Control facility near Brentwood, and the Venice Pressure Control structure in the San Fernando Valley.

Lauten said the energy generated by the plants would be equivalent to saving 1,450 barrels of oil daily.

If detailed engineering and enviornmental studies by MWD staff and consultants prove the plants to be feasible and environmentally acceptable, it would become the first time that hydroelectric power would be generated by the district.

Terrorists slay 2 U.S. airmen

THE LONG ROAD BACK

Behind the pressure masks they must wear constantly, Cindy and Randy Woodard of Wichita, Kan., are mending from the fire injuries that nearly took their lives. The masks, designed to prevent facial scarring, can come off in 6 to 12 months, but the children will require various treatments for the next 16 years. With them is Carol Woodard, their mother.

Gunned down in Tehran street on way to work

TEHRAN (AP) — Terrorists shot and killed two U.S. Air Force officers on a Tehran street today as they were being driven to work.

The assassins escaped. The Iranian government said they were Marxist guerrillas, and "no action will be spared to find the murderers and bring them to justice."

The embassy officially identified the dead men as Air Force Lt. Col. Paul R. Shafer Jr, 45, a native of Dayton, Ohio, and Air Force Lt. Col. Jack J. Turner, 45, from Carbondale, Ill.

Shafer, a graduate of Ohio State University, was married and the father of two children. Turner, a graduate of the University of Nebraska, was married and the father of three children.

An Embassy communique gave this account of the shooting:

"Two U.S. military officers were assassinated by terrorists at 6:30 a.m. Wednesday, May 21. As the officers were being driven to their duties, a car pulled out to block their progress on the street. Another car rammed them from behind.

"According to an eyewitness, three men got out of the automobiles and after ordering the Iranian driver of the car carrying the officers to get down on the floor of the car, shot the two officers several times as they fell to the floor. The terrorists then got into a third car and made their escape.

"His Excellency Premier Amir Abass Hoveida has expressed his condolences to the families of the men who were killed. The appropriate authorities of the imperial government of Iran are vigorously investigating the tragedy."

A Marxist-anarchist underground has been active in Iran for several years. About 200 of them have been killed in battles with the police or executed by firing squads, and Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlevi said while visiting Washington recently that about 3,000 of them are in jail.

Officials in Washington said the U.S. military assistance group in Iran now numbers 1,000 Americans in uniform and about 2,000 civilians. The American community in the country totals 20,000 people and is expected to reach 50,000 by 1980 because of Iran's huge purchases of American arms, industrial equipment and other major items.

An Iranian government spokesman expressed "deep regret" at the murder of the two officers and said: "Such instances of terrorism whether directed against Americans or Iranians are deeply repellent to the conscience of the overwhelming majority of the Iranian people."

Unofficial sources also reported an Iranian murdered by terrorists today. They said he was an employe of the government radio-television company, Ebrahim Nushirevani, but had no other information about this killing.

Bizarre weather plagues nation

By The Associated Press

Thunderstorms roamed the nation's midsection from Texas to the Great Lakes again today after hammering a wide area with tornadoes, wind, rain and hail.

At least four persons were dead and numerous others were treated for minor injuries as a result of the storms Tuesday and into the night.

A continuing storm in the West heaped heavy snow into Utah and Wyoming. As much as 22 inches buried sections of central Utah, blocking highways, closing schools and causing a major power and telephone outage.

Twenty-one tornadoes were reported by the National Weather Service in Texas, Arkansas, Iowa, Illinois, Minnesota and Michigan. As was the case Monday, however, most of the damage was caused by ordinary high winds and not twisters.

House lowers sex barriers at academies

WASHINGTON (AP) — Women cadets could enroll at the three military academies as early as next year if the Senate follows the House in voting to end the sex barrier.

Admission of women to West Point, Annapolis and the Air Force Academy was approved Tuesday night by the House 303 to 96 over objections that entrance to the academies could be the first step to putting them into combat.

One opponent, Rep. Larry McDonald, D-Ga., said it could lead to combat officers having to breast feed babies.

But supporters said women should have equal access to the educations that can boost military careers and produce national leaders.

"It might be interesting if we add a new element to the great leadership of this country of ours," said Rep. Bella S. Abzug, D-N.Y.

Rep. Samuel S. Stratton, D-N.Y., who introduced the amendment to eliminate sex as a barrier to admission to the academies, said he believes there is no question the House vote would clear the way for approval by the full Congress of admitting women to the academies.

He said the first women cadets could enter the academies as early as July 1976.

Opponents said they could not vote for a step toward putting women into combat. They said it would be a waste of money if women were not prepared for combat after going through the academies. It costs $70,000 to $80,000 to train an individual in one of the three military academies.

Groceries reverse trend, push consumer prices up

WASHINGTON (AP) — Grocery prices reversed a two-month downturn and helped push over-all consumer prices up six-tenths of a per cent in April, the government reported today.

The April increase was double that of March and the biggest increase since January when retail prices also rose six-tenths of a per cent. But the increase still was far below the typical monthly increases of inflationary 1974, when the annual rate was 12.2 per cent.

The White House had said it did not expect the lower March rate to continue. The April increase was in line with the administration's forecast of an annual inflation rate of about 6 or 7 per cent this year.

Retail prices over the past three months have risen at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 5.8 per cent. During the same three-month period in 1974, rnlail prices rose at an adjusted annual rate of 11.8 per cent.

The Labor Department said last month's increase reflected an upturn in food prices, following two months of decline, and a large increase in nonfood commodities.

Prices were reported up for many items, including used cars, furniture, houses, gasoline, magazines, auto insurance, natural gas and foods such as fresh fruits, eggs and beef. Prices were listed as down for mortgage interest rates and fresh vegetables and sugar.

In a separate report, the Labor Department said that average hourly earnings of production workers continued to rise along with the average work week, but the purchasing power of the weekly paycheck continued to decline.

Misdemeanor fines five times as big?

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Maximum fines for misdemeanors would be five times as big — up to $5,000 — under a bill that has reached the Assembly floor.

The Senate-approved measure by Sen. Nate Holden, D-Culver City, would boost the maximum fine for most misdemeanors to $2,500 from the present $500.

Other misdemeanors that now carry $1,000 maximum fines would go up to $5,000.

Malpractice insurance boosted 141 per cent

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A 141 per cent increase in malpractice insurance premiums is being slapped on Southern California doctors — even as some are involved in a spreading work slowdown over such insurance costs.

The bad news for 8,500 doctors in Los Angeles and Orange counties came Tuesday, the second day of a protest by some anesthesiologists who are refusing to handle nonemergencies.

Travelers Insurance Companies, in a letter to customers, termed the increase "a minimal one" needed to maintain coverage while the state legislature holds a special session on the malpractice crisis.

By today, the withholding of nonemergency services by anesthesiologists was expected to affect hospitals in Los Angeles, Orange, San Bernardino, Santa Barbara and Ventura counties.

Surgery at 41 hospitals was reported down 80 per cent. The loss of revenues from would-be surgical patients was estimated at $400,000 a day, according to the Hospital Council of Southern California.

Council spokesman Leon Hauck said that a 200-bed hospital would lose about $10,000 a day.

"Hospitals which have been hit are cutting back personnel," he said. "Those that expect to be hit are making plans to reduce personnel."

'The acid test'

Kissinger links detente's future to Berlin's fate

BERLIN (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger today tied the future of detente to the fate of West Berlin, saying the city represents "the acid test" of better East-West relations.

Kissinger told a welcoming airport crowd he had come to Berlin "to renew the American commitment to freedom ... our principles and our values."

He later told a group of civilian U.S. employes that Berlin is "a city which has every reason to be proud" and Americans serving here have a special role to play in carrying out the American position."

"I want you to know," he said, "how much it means to me to come to this city where basic issues do not require so much explanation."

After speaking to the city's House of Representatives, Kissinger departed for Ankara, Turkey to confer with Turkish leaders about U.S.-Turkish relations and the Cyprus question.

In his speech to parliament, Kissinger declared:

"Only if Berlin flourishes will detente flourish, only if you are secure will Europe be secure. This has been America's attitude for 30 years, and it has not changed. On behalf of President Ford and the American people, I reaffirm our historic relationship today."

"In a new era of eased confrontation in Europe, the fate of Berlin will determine the future of the efforts to insure security through negotiation and cooperation. As Berlin was the greatest symbol of the heroism of the immediate postwar period, it is also the acid test of the period we now hope to enter.

The secretary of state charted the benefits to the city resulting from the Big Four agreement of 1971 entered into with France, Britain and the Soviet Union.

Kissinger said these included unimpeded civilian traffic to and from West Berlin, improved communications between the city and East Germany and East Berlin, and visits to the East running into the millions annually.

Malpractice bills swell: 8 in a day

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The doctors' strike has spread in California, even though the state legislature opened a special session on malpractice insurance.

Eight bills were introduced Tuesday at the opening of the special session called by Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.

The session is concurrent with the legislature's regular session, where a stop-gap bill designed to cut malpractice insurance rates for the rest of the year was moving ahead.

Legislative leaders said it may be three months before long range solutions to the crisis reach the Democratic governor's desk.

Brown, after meeting with Donald Burns, his business and transportation secretary, said:

"These (malpractice) premiums reflect a reality that has been growing for a long period of time. To change that situation is not going to be easy, or free from pain. It's going to require a great deal of soul-searching on the part of a lot of people or those premium rates are not going to go down."

Despite repeated legislators' pleas for doctors to return to work, there were these developments Tuesday:

—The Hospital Council of Southern California reported 41 hospitals in a six-county area, hit by an anesthesiologists' slowdown, are losing $400,000 a day in revenue. By Friday, another 8 to 10 hospitals will be affected, the council said.

—Also in Southern California, at least two-thirds of the 125 anesthesiologists in San Diego County say they will join the strike this Friday.

—In Northern California, the original May 1 walkout over Argonaut Insurance Co.'s rate increase continues in the San Francisco Bay area. Anesthesiologists in the Sacramento area joined the boycott in sympathy Monday, and five anesthesiologists in Napa say they will join Friday.

Assembly Speaker Leo McCarthy, D-San Francisco, and Senate minority leader George Deukmejian, R-Long Beach, have called on the doctors to return to work.

Deukmejian said in a statement:

"...It would be the mark of professionalism for the doctors to return to their medical responsibilities while we, in the legislature, exercise our responsibility to work expeditiously to find both a short term and long term solution to this problem."

In another development, Assemblyman Bob Wilson, a La Mesa Democrat who is chairman of the Joint Legislative Audit Committee, introduced a resolution directing his committee to probe the underwriting of malpractice insurance.

Wilson's action was hailed by the California Trial Lawyers Association which said in a statement: "...it proposes the first real solution to the medical malpractice problem."

The bills introduced in the special session include ones to:

—Set up state boards to disqualify doctors for incompetency.

—Create an administrative system for handling malpractice claims, with maximum fees for lawyers, a three-year statute of limitations on claims, and state review of insurance premiums.

—Put the state in the malpractice insurance business.

—Limit doctor and hospital fees, and hold down unnecessary construction of hospital beds.

Topsy-turvy temperatures: Moscow and Detroit in 80s... L.A. in 60s

Overheated Muscovites spent a weekday basking on the banks of the Moscow river Tuesday. Spring has been far hotter and dryer than Russian springs are supposed to be. Daytime temperatures have been in the low 80s most of this month.

Southland cooling it —in May

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Skies over Southern California should be clear until the weekend, but temperatures will remain low and windy conditions are expected to continue.

The National Weather Service said the high in downtown Los Angeles will be in the low 60s. Tuesday's high of 62 degrees was the coldest for the day since 1946.

Elsewhere, highs will be in the in the 60s and low 70s in coastal areas, in the low 60s in inland valleys, in the 50s in the mountains and from the upper 50s to the mid 70s in the deserts.

Overnight lows will range from the mid 40s to mid 50s along the coast to the mid 20s to the 30s in the mountains.

A freak weather pattern brought snow and rain and blustery winds to Southern California Tuesday. Weather forecasters said snow flurries in the Big Bear area were the latest in the season in the area in at least 11 years.

Rain in downtown Los Angeles amounted to .09 inches, raising the seasonal rainfall to 14.35 inches, compared to 14.92 inches at this time last year and a normal of 14 inches.

Heavier rain in varying amounts was also reported in Pasadena, San Gabriel, Bakersfield, Riverside, San Bernardino and Mt. Baldy Village.

Winds toppled power poles in the deserts and blowing sand reduced visibility in many areas. Eastbound motorists on Interstate 10 were warned of hazardous wind conditions.

Dawn Marie Thiede needed some coaxing to get in the water at Detroit's Belle Isle beach. Her mother, Sharon, finally did it and found it hard later to get the child out. Temperatures hit the mid-80s in Detroit area Tuesday.

State gains tougher car smog control

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Cars sold in California in 1977 will have to cause less smog than those sold elsewhere in the nation — even at the cost of higher prices and poorer gas mileage.

The federal Environmental Protection Agency granted the state permission Tuesday to impose stricter smog standards for 1977 cars because California's air pollution problems are the worst in the country.

A state official called it "an important step" toward cleaner air. Auto manufacturers, on the other hand, say the requirement will mean:

—An increase in purchase prices of from $5 to $180, depending on a variety of factors;

—A drop in fuel economy of 5 per cent to 15 per cent;

—A smaller selection of different models, because not all models can be modified to meet the standards.

To meet the tougher regulations, the 1977 cars will be equipped with the controversial catalytic converters that remove pollutants from exhaust gasses.

Stricter 1977 standards were scheduled to go into effect for the entire country under the federal Clean Air Act. But EPA Administrator Russell Train recommended earlier this year that the standards be delayed because of potential health hazards from the converters.

California officials, in asking to be exempted from the delay, said they believe the dangers from converters have been vastly exaggerated.

Tom Quinn, chairman of the California Air Resources Board, said Tuesday that Train had told him recently he regretted making the recommendation.

"Everything that has come out since (the warnings of health hazards) has confirmed our judgment that there isn't any immediate sulfate danger with catalysts," said Quinn.

Ruling is hailed by air board

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Federal permission for California to enforce the nation's toughest smog standards for 1977 cars has been hailed by state officials as a "major victory."

Tom Quinn, chairman of the state Air Resources Board, said Tuesday the decision by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency "will allow California to remain in the forefront of the fight to clean up our air."

"We expect that the new standards will add only about $5 to the cost of cars produced for California," Quinn said, " and we are also hopeful that we will get cars with substantially improved gasoline mileage."

California is the only state allowed to enforce auto emission standards that are tougher than federal regulations, an exception granted because of the acute problems in the South Coast Air Basin.

"Our best single hope for cleaning up California's air is tough new vehicle standards, combined with a firm enforcement policy," Quinn said.

Bus passes for elderly and disabled

Bus passes for senior citizens and handicapped persons on the Omnitrans minibuses operated by the West Valley Transit Service Authority are on sale this week.

The passes are $3 per person and are good until revoked. They are available for purchase from 9 to 11 a.m. Thursday at the DeAnza Park and Bonview community buildings in Ontario; and Friday from 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. at the Upland City Hall.

The passes are accepted on all the West End buses operated under the jurisdiction of the WVTSA and on the connecting San Bernardino Transit System Route 14. County transportation personnel will issue the passes. The holder may ride and transfer free of additional charge with the pass.

Persons 62 and older are eligible and proof of age must be furnished when applying. Driver's license, birth certificate, Medi-Cal or Medicare card or other similar documents are acceptable. Applicants must appear in person as photographs are taken and appear on the pass.

Information regarding the senior citizen and handicapped pass program can be obtained by interested persons by calling the West End transit office, 988-1215.

Nurse denies killing mother

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A nurse has pleaded innocent to murder in the death of a Van Nuys woman whose baby was cut from her womb with a knife a few minutes after she had been fatally stabbed.

Nurse Norma Armistead, 45, Hollywood, had been off duty when the alleged slaying occurred. She was arrested after she had come to Kaiser Hospital in Hollywood and gotten into a bed — claiming to be the little boy's mother.

One of the real mother's three children, meanwhile, discovered her body Saturday. She had died of a severed neck artery.

In Mrs. Armistead's arraignment Tuesday her preliminary hearing was set for June 13. She was denied bail under a provision in a murder case that could result in the death penalty.

Detectives still haven't ventured a reason for the slaying of Kathryn Viramontes, 28. The defendant had a number of children of her own.

The baby, which survived, was reported in good condition. His future remains uncertain.

Brother-in-law can't apply for job in L.V.

La Verne is already known as a tightly knit community. But it became even closer this week by order of the City Council.

The council decreed Monday night that, for the purposes of the city's antinepotism law at least, brothers-in-law have a closer relationship in family ties than cousins, aunts, uncles, nephews and nieces.

Consequently, the council denied a request by William Zollinger to apply for a job with the Fire Department because his wife's brother-in-law was already employed there.

The city has a law on the books which prohibits hiring close relatives of those who already are on the payroll.

Attorney Donald G. Haslam argued that Zollinger's relationship to Fireman Don Johnson was so removed that it was not likely to create any neoptism problems.

But based on a report by City Atty. Wynne Furth that "defining in-laws as narrowly as possible, (the nepotism law) would include the applicant's in-laws and the applicant's spouse's in-laws" the council voted 4-0 to include that interpretation in its regulations.

Mayor Mike M. Morales, whose daughter, Vicky, is Zollinger's wife, abstained from the discussion and the vote.

Zollinger is now a volunteer fireman. He had hoped to take the examination for one of four paid jobs which are opening up next summer in La Verne.

L.A. area living cost increased 1% in April

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Consumer prices in the Los Angeles metropolitan continued spiraling upward, climbing almost 1 per cent in April, Department of Labor officials said today.

Department statistics indicated an increase of 12 per cent in the cost of living as compared to April 1.74.

Suzanne Sadowsky, head of the department's Southern California Bureau, said the consumer price index in the Los Angeles area in April was 155.6, meaning that it cost $15.56 to buy the same goods and services which cost $10 in the base year 1967.

The purchasing power of the 1967 dollar dropped to 64.3 cents last month, she added.

Heavy increases in transportation and housing costs were largely to blame for the rise in April's cost of living, Miss Sadowsky said.

Snack rebates by end of year

LOS ANGELES (AP) — About 308,000 potato, corn and tortilla chip eaters who took a bite of a $6 million rebate plan should get their checks in the mail by the end of the year, an attorney says.

OIA traffic hits downdraft

Even airports have their ups and downs.

This is reflected at Ontario International Airport where passenger traffic last month dipped to 91,553 persons compared to 104,295 the previous March.

And the amount of air cargo hauled slipped from 534,381 pounds in March, 1974, to 104,295 last month.

The decline, however, is expected to be only temporary because of vacation travel and fare reduction incentives, said Robert Hamilton, airport manager.

"With additional flights scheduled for the summer vacation months and reduced fare programs the airlines have started, I believe our traffic will pick up shortly," he added.

Another factor involved is the fuel shortage last year. The gasoline crisis then probably caused many persons to fly who might have otherwise driven their cars. this year, gasoline isn't in such a demand, he explained.

The March passengers pushed the total number of persons using the airport so far this year to 374,518. This compares with the same period last year with 392,723.

Declines were noted last month in those flying on commercial and commuter flights while increases were recorded on non scheduled and alternate operations.

The number of commercial passengers dropped from 91,875 to 82,540 and commuter passengers from 11,951 to 8,166 during the comparison months. For the same period, however, persons on non scheduled flights went from 146 to 448 and those on alternate operations from 323 to 359.

The number of flights showed a slight increase during the two month period—12,838 last month compared to 12,714 the previous March.

Last month's flights included: air carrier, 2,565; alternates, two; air taxi, 1,121; military, 1,503; and general aviation, 7,647.

William H. Hoagland, a vice president of American Olean Tile Co., has been placed in charge of the firm's Pomona plant, the former Pomona Tile Co. He succeeds Gordon W. Phillips who resigned.

Has Florida solved its malpractice dilemma?

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Florida doctors looked forward today to guaranteed insurance coverage and a reduction in patient lawsuits because of a medical malpractice reform act.

Gov. Reubin Askew, surrounded by smiling doctors and lawmakers, signed the measure into law Tuesday with the hope that it will "help us avert a crisis in the delivery of vital health care services in Florida."

Sponsors said the new Florida law represents the first comprehensive attack on the malpractice dilemma in the nation.

In California, where doctor protests over soaring malpractice rates have halted nonessential surgery in large portions of the state, the legislature is in special session. But it may be three months before bills atempting long-range solutions reach the governor's desk.

The New York legislature passed a bill this week designed to avert the collapse of medical malpractice insurance in the state by placing restrictions on patients' rights and setting up an insurance pool. The Tennessee legislature also passed a similar bill this week.

And in Maryland, the state insurance commissioner Tuesday approved a 300 per cent boost in physicians' insurance rates to prevent cancelation of malpractice insurance until a state-created, doctor-run insurance company begins operation at the end of July.

But Rep. John Forbes, a chief architect of the Florida act, claims "no other state has taken such a far-reaching approach to this problem."

The two-pronged Florida law imposes a four-year statute of limitations on the filing of lawsuits and requires patients to take their claims to a mediation panel as a prerequisite to going into court. There formerly was no time limit for filing suits in Florida.

"We made a social decision," said Forbes. "We decided that the claims of some few people were going to have to be sacrificed to make the cost of insurance reasonable to the majority of people."

The act also gives the Board of Medical Examiners and hospitals the authority for the first time to revoke the licenses and dismiss doctors found guilty of malpractice.

Missing from the act were two original proposals by doctors to outlaw contingency fees by attorneys and impose specific ceilings on malpractice injuries. But physicians say they hope a study commission created by the law will recommend those steps next year.

"This is a beginning in an effort to solve a very real problem for insurance companies, doctors and the people," said Dr. Thad Mosley, past president of the Florida Medical Association.

The act also guarantees coverage for doctors and hospitals by requiring insurance companies in Florida to write policies and share in the risk by forming a premium pool to pay damages below $100,000.

The liability of doctors ends at $100,000 for those who join a patient's compensation fund which will be used to bankroll large claims. Doctors pay $1,000 and hospitals $500 a bed to join the fund.

Another provision allows doctors and hospitals to form their own nonprofit cooperatives for self-insurance.

Don't want tax hike—Brown

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. renewed his pledge of no general tax increase this year and said he doesn't want any tax hike in future years either.

Brown commented after his chief fiscal advisor released a report Tuesday that California's state budget will be $257 million in the red next year because of the recession.

That deficit will chew up nearly half of the surplus from this year's budget, Finance Director Roy Bell told the Assembly Ways and Means Committee.

Brown said he favors retaining the rest of the budget surplus as a hedge against further bad economic news.

"I want to maintain as much of the surplus as humanly possible," Brown said.

"We have to maintain a prudent reserve in the event the economy doesn't get better. We have to be very careful and conservative in our management of the state's resources," the Democratic governor said.

"I'm not going to support any increase in general taxes, and I'm going to resist very strongly any efforts that will make that a necessity two or three years down the road," he added.

"We have to make tough choices on limited resources. That applies to education, it applies to health, it applies to everything," Brown said.

"Education is no more a sacred cow than anything else," he added in response to questions about extra state funds for public schools.

Bell said the state general fund will take in $8.99 billion and spend $9.25 billion in the fiscal year beginning July 1.

Total revenue and spending by the state will top $11 billion, Bell said.

The deficit forecast by Bell will cut Brown's anticipated budget surplus from $574 million to $349.7 million.

Bell's budget report was a mix of good news and bad news for the governor and legislature.

The bad news was that the recession has hit California harder than had been anticipated in the budget which Brown sent to the legislature Jan. 12.

The good news was that worsening economic conditions didn't wipe the $574-million surplus out entirely, as some economists had predicted.

Bell said the economy has pushed public school enrollments higher than expected. He said the lack of jobs apparently has induced some potential dropouts to stay in school, and adult education enrollments are also increasing.

As a result, Bell said, the automatic apportionments to public schools based on attendance are higher — $47 million this spring and an anticipated $118 million more in the 1975-76 fiscal year.

Bell said that was the biggest hike over January figures among state expenditures. Next biggest was welfare, up $34.1 million.

W. Germany's Bonnie and Clyde

Alert on as trial begins

STUTTGART, West Germany (AP) — West Germany's Bonnie and Clyde went on trial today in a special courthouse built in a maximum-security prison at a cost of $3.5 million amid a nationwide alert against the possibility of terrorist attempts to free them.

While police, border troops and armored cars stood guard outside public buildings throughout the country, Andreas Baader, 32, and Ulrike Meinhof, 40, leaders of the Baader-Meinhof Gang of anarchists, sullenly took their seats in the dock inside Stammheim Prison.

The 354-page indictment accuses them of masterminding a wave of antistate terror in the early 1970s that killed four U.S. servicemen and a German policeman, of threatening the lives of at least 54 other persons, of bombings, shootings and bank robberies that left 65 persons wounded and netted the equivalent of $200,000.

Two other gang leaders, Jan-Carl Raspe, 30, the gang's bomb expert, and Gudrun Ensslin, 34, a pastor's daughter who became Baader's mistress, also went on trial before the five-judge tribunal. A fifth gang leader, Holger Meins, 33, died last Nov. 9 after a hunger strike that the other four kept up for 145 days.

In West Germany's most heavily guarded court proceeding since the Nuernberg war crimes tribunal three decades ago, dozens of police guarded the two-story courthouse set behind double fences equipped with electronic sensors and under continuous surveillance by television cameras.

The four gang leaders appeared pale from their three years of pretrial detention as they took seats in the dock behind half a dozen defense lawyers. On the eve of the trial, they dropped plans to resume their hunger strike after authorities allowed them to leave their solitary confinement cells to consult together briefly.

But 15 sympathizers in a West Berlin jail began a fast Tuesday to protest the trial.

With testimony scheduled from some 1,000 witnesses, the trial is expected to last at least 18 months.

There were persistent reports that German anarchists would attack the West German embassies in Oslo and Stockholm in another attempt to force the government to free the defendants. The police in the two capitals put extra guards on the embassies.

A band of anarchists occupied the Stockholm embassy last month, killed two West German diplomats and blew up the building, but the Bonn government refused to free the defendants and 22 other alleged members of the gang in German jails.

More than 50 other followers or members of other anarchist groups are behind bars, awaiting trial or serving sentences.

2nd arrest made in gem theft

Chino detectives have arrested a second suspect in the March 21 holdup of Brennan Jewelers, 12920 Central Ave. in which about $36,000 in jewelry was taken.

Bail has been set at $25,000 for Louis Anthony Figueroa, 2925 N. Bristol Ave., Santa Ana, arrested at 1:40 p.m. Tuesday.

The first suspect arrested, Robert Gene Griffin, is to be arraigned on a robbery charge Friday in West End Superior Court.

A third person in the case, Alex Ojeda, has pleaded guilty to selling stolen property. He will be sentenced June 27 in superior court.

Two masked men armed with a .38 caliber revolver held up two store employes and three customers March 21 at the jewelry store.

The five victims were bound with telephone and record cords in a back room.

The robbers took only diamonds from display cases, police said.

Carpenters would take wage cut to revive construction

MIAMI (AP) — Union carpenters, with half of their number out of work in three South Florida counties, think they have a way to revive the area's dormant building industry: work for less pay.

The union offered Tuesday to take a $2.70 per hour wage cut on residential construction in Dade, Collier and Monroe counties, where a building boom fizzled out and left 4,000 carpenters jobless.

"I don't think anyone else has tried it — this may help," said Tom Becker of the Florida Home Builders Association. "We expect President Ford to veto the housing bill, so it looks like we'll have to do it with what we've got if we are to get things going."

The carpenters' offer to work for $6 per hour instead of $8.70 in the area that includes Miami, Naples and Key West met with some skepticism.

"I can't see them getting into the working man's pocket," said Art Fernandez, assistant business manager of Miami electricians Local 3349. "Why not the bankers and real estate men? Those big real estate tycoons and syndicates — that's where they ought to start."

Electricians won a 50-cent raise in March; 200 of the local's 1,500 members are out of work.

Kenneth Laurence, president of the Builders Association of South Florida, liked the carpenters' offer but said it won't help sell new houses that are going begging for buyers.

"We still have the problem of an excessive inventory," he said.

The carpenters called on other tradesmen to follow their lead. But even as carpenters announced their cut in pay, two other trades were striking for wage increases.

Plumbers in the Miami area are seeking to boost their $10.09 an hour and ironworkers want to boost the $8.80 scale paid in Key West, Miami and Fort Lauderdale.

The carpenters' action isn't the first hardship adjustment in South Florida's building trades. Carpenters and three other trades on the Gold Coast agreed last month to extend their contracts for another year at the old wages.

Rizzo crushes his opposition

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Mayor Frank L. Rizzo has crushed the Democratic organization that had tagged him a "monster" and a "liar" and refused to endorse him for a second term because he supported Republican President Richard M. Nixon.

And Rizzo's smashing primary renomination Tuesday also swept in most of his candidates for City Council and judge, virtually guaranteeing him control of the powerful Democratic party machine that has run America's fourth largest city since 1952.

Rizzo defeated state Sen. Louis G. Hill, the party choice, and four other candidates in a bitter name-calling battle that failed to excite the electorate.

2 die, dog saved

Man accused in lifeboat drama

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — Charges evoking 19th Century lifeboat deaths have been lodged against a yachtsman who allegedly saved his dog but left three crewmen in the ocean for 10 hours until two died.

In an indictment Tuesday, a federal grand jury charged Cyril E. LaBrecque, 50, master of the yacht "Sadie and Edgar," with negligent operation of the yacht and the lifeboat resulting in death — a federal maritime law violation equivalent to manslaughter.

U.S. Atty. Jonathan L. Goldstein said the last such case in federal court occurred in 1842, when the mate of a ship lost in the Atlantic threw 16 passengers overboard to reduce overcrowding in his lifeboat.

LaBrecque, if found guilty on all three counts of the indictment — which charged violation of three different laws citing the same facts — could be sentenced to 14 years in prison and fined $12,000.

The "Sadie and Edgar," a 29-year-old vessel designed along the lines of an old-style fishing schooner, was wrecked off Little Beach Island just north of Atlantic City Jan. 28, 1974.

One of her two lifeboats proved unseaworthy. Into the remaining boat, an 11-foot wooden rowboat, LaBrecque put himself, his wife Jessie, 51; an injured crewman, Michael J. Rika, 20, of South Windsor, Conn.; and the LaBrecques' 80-pound Labrador Retriever.

Three other crewmen, Bradford Blakely, 20, and Paul Sagarino, 19, both of Wethersfield, Conn., and Valentine Bach, 47, of Chester, Conn., were left in the water, lashed to the sides of the dinghy.

The indictment charged that LaBrecque refused their requests to throw the dog overboard or to rotate the people in and out of the water, giving each a chance to warm up.

The indictment said that after 10 hours in the water, Blakely and Sagarino died. Drowning was officially the cause of death. LaBrecque then allowed Bach to climb aboard the rowboat, Goldstein said.

Goldstein said LaBrecque, who lived in South Windsor, Conn., before the voyage, has moved to Santa Ana, Calif., with his wife and dog.

'UDDERLY' RIDICULOUS?

Drawing shows how to pamper a cow with the latest in bovine lingerie. The bra is manufactured by a company in Conover, Wis., and is being distributed in U.S. and Canada.

CONOVER, Wis. (AP) — Dorothy Rice is in the lingerie business. For cows.

She is president of the Franksville Specialty Co., which makes giant brassieres for milk-laden dairy cows.

The bovine bra, invented by Mrs. Rice's father 30 years ago, is now being distributed throughout the United States and Canada to dairy farmers who want to pamper their prize cows.

The bras, which come in basic barnyard brown, are not only designed to make cows more comfortable and induce them to give more milk, but they also help keep cows from injuring their sagging udders.

"A full udder can weigh 75 or 80 pounds and is suspended by just a few ligaments and skin," said Michigan State University dairy science professor Russell Erickson. "They droop."

"The udder can get chilled and become hard and congested," Mrs. Rice said. "The support keeps the udder warm and helps prevent this condition. It also prevents damage to the udder which often occurs if a cow steps on it."

Mrs. Rice, who makes the giant bras with four other women workers in her small factory here, says the company sold 5,000 Tamm Udder Supports last year. The name comes from their inventor, William Tamm.

The bras, made of cotton webbing, nylon mesh and string lacings, fit over the cows' backs and must be unlaced for the twice daily milkings. The bras generally retail for about $31.

There are four sizes: small, for the 900-1,100 pound cow; medium for 1,100-1,600 pound cows; large for cows over 1,600 pounds, and extra large for cows with unusually large udders.

Mrs. Rice says more farmers are willing to go to the time and expense of outfitting their herds with bras because fewer farmers are producing more of the nation's milk with fewer cattle these days.

Consequently, more farmers are willing to invest a little more in their herds to keep the cows mooing contentedly and giving 40 to 50 pounds of milk a day.

Caltech students win 20% of McDonald prize money

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Some Caltech students really took seriously that McDonald hamburger chain slogan, "You deserve a break today." They are about $10,000 richer for it.

Two months ago, the students decided to give themselves a break in McDonald's $50,000 sweepstakes contest, by applying a little Caltech mathematical expertise.

Taking up the invitation to enter "as often as you like" the students submitted 1.2 million entries printed by an IBM computer.

As of Tuesday, counting up the final figures, the students had nearly 20 per cent of the prizes, with the biggest haul being made by Becky Hartsfield, an 18-year-old coed who won a new Datsun station wagon and $3,000 worth of groceries.

She said she planned to give the car to charity and donate the cash equivalent of the grocery prize to Caltech for housing improvements.

The students' plan didn't lessen the other entrants' chances of winning the sweepstakes because when McDonald's lawyers determined that the duplicate entries were legal, the company announced it would award additional prizes to cover whatever the students won.

Mrs. Ford to inspect refugee camp

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Expressing her concern for Vietnamese refugees, First Lady Betty Ford planned a personal visit to Camp Pendleton today to see for herself how some of the 18,000 evacuees there are getting along.

The President's wife decided on her own to go. "I haven't talked to the President," she said.

Mrs. Ford said she wanted to see "things that are taking place out there," as she arranged to drive about 60 miles to the sprawling Marine base for a face-to-face meeting with some of the refugees.

Mrs. Ford was in California on a four-day visit, mainly to promote the arts. She told her staff she wanted to try to fit in a trip to Camp Pendleton if it could be worked out.

"I'm going because of my interest, of course," the First Lady told reporters Tuesday night as she left a dinner celebrating the 50th anniversary of the Fine Arts Gallery of San Diego, where she cut a gold ribbon opening a new Asian wing.

Her plan to make the personal inspection of the refugee camp came as a surprise addition to her schedule.

It sent her aides and Secret Service agents scurrying to Camp Pendleton to make the arrangements.

Late Tuesday night, press secretary Sheila Weidenfeld explained Mrs. Ford's decision:

"She's going because she wants to. She's interested in meeting the refugees. She's always been concerned about them. She would like to see the camp and she wants to see for herself what's going on. She's been interested in the orphans and the refugees from the beginning."

On an Easter visit to Palm Springs, Calif., when the airlift of Vietnamese orphans was underway, President and Mrs. Ford had flown to Travis Air Force Base north of San Francisco to greet some of the first arrivals.

Mrs. Ford will be able to give a first-hand report to the President on the status of the refugees, who are still awaiting processing to homes in the United States. Ford has not himself been on any personal visits with the refugees since a massive U.S. airlift brought some 125,000 out of Saigon just before South Vietnam fell May 1.

Camp Pendleton is a major relocation center for the refugees and 18,000 are there now, including some 1,100 Cambodians. Many of them are children, and Mrs. Ford said she wanted to see some of the refugees personally and also to talk to camp officials.

Panel OKs registration by postcard

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Postcard voter registration would be authorized in California under a bill sent to the Assembly floor.

Assemblyman Jim Keysor, D-Sepulveda, told the Ways and Means Committee Tuesday that his bill is needed because such a low number of Californians turn out at the polls.

Californians now must register in person with deputy registrars.

A 10-7 vote sent the bill to the floor.

Another measure by Assemblyman Ken Meade, D-Oakland, would scrap voter registration almost entirely. No vote was taken on that bill.

Under Meade's bill, a voter could go to a polling place on election day, present identification and sign a certificate that he lived in the precinct. Then he could vote.

The Keysor bill is AB 822. The Meade bill is AB 954.

She blows cover of murder suspect

NEW YORK (AP) — Betty Lou Orloff saw a picture of a murder suspect in her newspaper. It was supposedly her son. It wasn't.

A prison confrontation between Mrs. Orloff, of Valley Falls, N.Y., and the murder suspect disclosed the youth had given a false identity when arrested, and police accepted it.

Police confirmed Tuesday that the 17-year-old youth being held on a murder charge in the May 10 stabbing of an art dealer now has been identified as Douglas Allen Bell of Willingboro, N.J.

Police said that when arrested, Bell produced an identification card issued by Troy, N.Y., police with the name of 23-year-old Harry Orloff on it. Police reported his identity on that basis.

Mrs. Orloff went to New York City's Riker's Island prison after seeing a picture of Bell, identified as her son, in a newspaper. Bell subsequently gave authorities his true identity, police said. Mrs. Orloff said she does not know her son's present whereabouts.

Bell is accused of killing international art dealer Jon Streep, whose body was found in a Manhattan hotel room. The youth was arrested in the hotel lobby a short time after the slaying.

Mrs. Orloff, who said "there's not even a possible excuse" for police not to have verified the identification, commented: "Anybody who can look at a kid who's 17 and say he's 23 has got to be pretty dumb."

Carmel holds to lifestyle

CARMEL, Calif. (AP) — The visitor usually looks on Carmel as an artists' colony with quaint shops and homes. But not the resident. He clings to the "village" character of his home. In fact, the official name of the village is "Carmel by the Sea."

Most residents and business establishments don't have addresses. The result is that most old timers go to the post office every day for their mail.

Delivery men have become accustomed to addresses such as: "Carmelo and 11th, third house on left."

In 1952 the state advised the city fathers they would have to have proper street signs or the gas tax refund would be withheld. Carmel threatened to secede from the union. The state backed off.

Carmel has always been proud of its trees. Trees with streets running around them are common.

Carmel once passed an ordinance making it illegal to sit on the grass. After a fight of three years and a U.S. Supreme Court decision, the law was rescinded. So they passed a new ordinance which rules you can sit on the grass "in a manner which does not harm grass or plants."

Conversion to coal for 9 utilities

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Energy Administration is notifying nine utilities in the Midwest that it intends to order them to convert their power plants to burn coal rather than natural gas or oil, an FEA spokesman said Wednesday night.

He said the FEA was sending out "notices of intent" to the utilities as a prelude to public hearings on the fuel-conversion program set to begin May 20 in Kansas City.

The utilities involved operate some 25 electric generating plants in Iowa, Kansas, Missouri and Nebraska, the spokesman said.

He added that after the Kansas City hearings, other proposed fuel-conversion steps are expected to be aired at similar hearings in cities including Chicago, Philadelphia, Boston, Atlanta and New York.

The spokesman said the planned FEA orders would direct the Midwestern utilities "not to use natural gas or crude oil products as their primary energy source."

He noted, however, that most of the utilities affected — which he did not specify by name — already are burning coal parttime at their facilities, so that the fuel switchover would not require them to install special equipment.

Wentz decides he'll stay on

Pomona Schools Supt. Robert E. Wentz, reportedly the leading candidate for the position of schools superintendent in Hammond, Ind., has removed himself from the running.

He did so, he explained today, because he had agreed with the Pomona school board to stay here for the two years remaining in his contract, "and perhaps longer."

According to a report published in the Hammond Compass newspaper, Wentz explained he was removing himself from the running for the position there because he "made an agreement with his Pomona board to stay for another year."

The Compass quoted Wentz as sayimg: "We're having some problems here in the Pomona schools, and I have agreed to stay on for another year to try and work things out.

"When the school board (representative in Hammond) called to tell me the board was interested in interviewing me further I had to tell them about the agreement I made with the (Pomona) board.

"I then removed myself as a candidate for the Hammond post."

According to the Compass report, Wentz "had the Hammond job in the bag" before he "threw a monkey wrench into the board's plans."

Wentz said today he also had applied for superintendent positions in Huntington Beach and Milwaukee, Wis., after he first had been contacted by them. "It just means someone recommended you for the job," he explained. Both those positions have been filled.

When asked how long he intended to stay in Pomona, Wentz replied, "It's hard to say. Many things go into a decision of that kind, both professional and personal."

He said he has no immediate plans to leave the district and emphasized that "a lot of factors would go into a decision like that and a lot will be told in the next few days."

He was referring, he said, to the May 27 tax override election the district has scheduled and added, "If it doesn't pass, I won't dump the situation."

The job of an administrator, he explained, "is to get resources to get the job done." He explained what special state and federal funding had been obtained since he became Pomona schools superintendent in 1971 (From $1.5 to $5.5 million).

"It's frustrating to not be able to come up with resources. The hardest part of the job is having to say no to good programs," he said.

The school district next Tuesday is asking voter approval of a 94 cent per $100 increase in its general purpose tax rate which would bring in $1.9 million a year for two years.

If the override is approved, programs and services cut from the 1975-76 budget by the school board in February would be reinstated, Wentz has said.

Discussion on film making at Scripps College

Scripps College alumna Diana Colson will show her travel films and discuss "Creative Film Making" Thursday at 4:15 p.m. in the Humanities Center Auditorium at Scripps College.

Sponsored by the College Art Department, career planning and alumnae offices, the film-lecture is open to the public without charge.

County asking valley's endorsement

Okay sought to expand Brackett

The county has come back to the valley seeking endorsement for the development and expansion of Brackett Field in La Verne.

The Aviation Division under Los Angeles County Engineer Harvey T. Brandt wants to install a second runway at the county-operated airport to speed up air traffic.

Fred G. Taplin, chief of the Aviation Division, says the project may cost as much as $2 million, including $600,000 for acquisition of additional land to relocate Puddingstone Drive north of where it now is.

The city councils of La Verne and Pomona opposed the expansion two years ago at a hearing of the state Department of Airports for environmental reasons, but the state approved the proposal despite the opposition.

Now the county's Airport Division is before the Federal Aviation Administration which also must okay the project.

Taplin disputed claims at Monday's council meeting in La Verne that the expansion would have an adverse environmental impact. He said the second runway would allow aircraft to land faster, thereby using less fuel and causing less noise.

And he pointed out that the growth of the community will inevitably cause air traffic to grow, whether or not the second runway is built.

But the council declined to take action on his request. Councilmen suggested that he present his case to the Commission on Environmental Quality which generated the objection.

Taplin said he is also asking the Pomona City Council to withdraw its objection.

He said 80 per cent of the money for the project would come from the federal government.

Taplin pointed out the Board of Supervisors already has approved the proposal. He said an environmental impact report already has been submitted to the FAA, showing the objections of the two cities. But if those objections were dropped the project would stand a better chance of being approved, he explained.

Auto official sees dramatic sale increase

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A top General Motors Corp. official predicts that by September, his company's automobile sales will be at an annual rate between 18 and 25 per cent higher than the present rate.

Robert D. Lund, general manager of GM's Chevrolet Motor Division, told a news conference recently that combined sales of foreign and domestic cars "by late this model year" will be at an annual rate of between 8.5 million and 9 million units.

Walnut district

Cutbacks loom in school jobs

Financial cutbacks in Walnut school district will resultin the elimination of three full-time positions and six janitorial positions, some of them part-time, plus a layoff of five instructional aides.

The full-time positions to be dropped in 1975-76 are those of senior typist working with the sixth grade at Walnut High School, a school community resource person who also serves as a public relations assistant, and a groundsman.

Layoff of five instructional aides at Vejar Elementary School will accompany cutbacks in Early Childhood Education (ECE) classrooms because of pupil transfers to the new Cyrus J. Morris Elementary School.

The reductions were approved by the school board Monday night. They are part of $275,000 to be trimmed from next year's budget.

To avoid cutting further, a "yes" vote is being urged by People Actively Supporting Schools (PASS) in a May 27 revenue limit election.

The issue is an increase of $58 per child per year for the next two years.

In terms of taxes, the increase would cost 68 cents per $100 assessed valuation in 1975-76 and slighly less in 1976-77.

Adult status sought for slaying suspects

A hearing is scheduled June 11 in Juvenile Court in Pomona on police attempts to have three youths certified as adults for prosecution in the slayings of two men in Pomona May 11.

Juvenile Court hearings are closed to the press and public and the three suspects haven't been identified by authorities because they are juveniles. Two are 17 and one is 16 and all live in Pomona.

Meanwhile, Pomona police filed two counts of murder against the three and an additional count of assault with a deadly weapon against one of the 17-year-olds. At a recent hearing in Juvenile Court, all three were ordered to remain in custody in Juvenile Hall.

Victims in the slayings were William Edward Woller Jr., 24, who was shot to death outside his residence at 1370 Elwood Ave., and Richard G. Clark, 31, who was killed a couple minutes later as he was preparing to enter his car parked in front of 1555 Elwood Ave.

Police gave this account:

The trouble began at the Woller residence where a small party was in progress. Police said that several youths, including the suspects, entered the party, although they had not been invited, but eventually were asked to leave because they became rowdy and were drinking all the beer.

Outside, an argument developed and a youth, the one later also charged with assault with a deadly weapon, threw a rock which struck Steven Woller, the victim's brother, in the mouth. He lost several teeth, police said. As he left to treat his injury, another youth, also 17, pulled a sawed-off, .22-caliber rifle, and shot William Woller.

The group, which numbered about 11, left and while walking near Dudley Street the weapon, which is single-shot, was relaoded. As the group passed Clark moments later, he was shot in the back in what officers described as a senseless killing.

A total of six youths were arrested during the investigation which followed. Of those, only three were charged. The others played no part in the incidents, investigators said.

The domino theory as applied to U.S. foreign policy in post World War II holds that as one country in Asia falls to Communism its neighbor falls until all are lost.

Expulsion of pupils on agenda

Pupil expulsions and the re-entry into district schools of pupils previously expelled will be considered at a special Pomona school board meeting Thursday at 7:30 p.m.

Kenneth C. Cooper, director of pupil personnel services, said five pupils are being recommended for expulsion and two for re-entry.

So far this year 24 pupils have been expelled from district schools, compared to 40 last year.

Cooper said about 60 per cent of those expelled last year have been readmitted to district schools, and that about 98 per cent of the pupils who are expelled who want to return to school are readmitted.

He said the average expelled pupils remains out of school a year.

Within two weeks, the district will have a report on expulsions showing statistics by school, sex and ethnic origin which will be made public.

Death was as natural to Lindy as was his birth

CHICAGO (AP) — Charles A. Lindbergh, the Lone Eagle, "was at the controls at all times" during his last flight, a two-year bout with cancer which killed him, says one of his physicians.

Lindbergh died in a remote cottage in Maui, Hawaii, last year, nearly a half-century after his history-making solo flight across the Atlantic Ocean in 1927.

One of his physicians, Dr. Milton M. Howell, recalled his dying days in an article in the May 19 issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association.

Lindbergh was found to have a lymphoma, a type of cancer, in 1972. Radiation and chemotherapy retarded the progress of the disease, Howell wrote, and during the two years until his death, Lindbergh remained active in conservation causes.

"From time to time, he returned to his beloved Kipahulu Valley, on the island of Maui, in Hawaii, a living museum of tropical foliage and wildlife," he said.

He helped clear the neglected graveyard "near this valley of a thousand waterfalls" and made arrangements for his own burial there, Howell said.

In August 1974, Lindbergh was hospitalized in New York and knew he had only a brief time to live. He arranged to be moved to a cottage overlooking the ocean on Maui, and was flown there on a litter.

He was attended by his family and nurses, and by Howell during the last eight days of his life.

He asked that no heroic measures be taken to keep him alive, the physician recalls, so no respirator or fibrillator or other complicated paraphernalia was used.

Oxygen was available when the patient needed it, and some pain killer was given, along with "a great deal of love and consideration from his family and medical staff."

APT to honor seven retiring staffers

Seven teachers and administrators retiring from Pomona's public schools the end of the school year will be honored at the annual Associated Pomona Teachers (APT) retirement tea and reception Thursday.

The event will be held in the Ganesha Park Community Building from 3:30 to 5 p.m.

Those retiring are Eleanor T. Allen, principal of San Jose Elementary School; Lucille G. Bronson, second-third grade teacher at Philadelphia Elementary School; Juanita L. Hitch, with psychological services; Lois F. Noll, second grade teacher at San Jose; Agnes J. Peterson, kindergarten teacher at Diamond Point Elementary School in Diamond Bar; Martha Rex Rode, special education teacher at Harrison Elementary School; and Helga B. Sparks, first grade teacher at Philadelphia.

All previously retired teachers and administrators in the Pomona area are invited to attend the reception.

Planning of the event is under the supervision of APT's social committee, headed by Montvue Elementary School teacher Barbara Myers. Serving on her committee are Sophia Pearman, Carol Curry, Alice Munns, Lydia Herrera and Luther Renner.

APT has been sponsoring retirement teas and receptions for district employes the past 25 years.

TORONTO (AP) — Four budding gorilla artists at the Metropolitan Toronto zoo have had their careers cut short. Their finger paintings were selling for up to $50 but zoo veterinarians said the animals had begun eating the nontoxic paint instead of applying it to the canvas.

S.B. County program

Blood pressure tests begin

Free blood pressure testing is being offered in San Bernardino County during May in an attempt to reach the maximum number of people and inform them of the dangers of high blood pressure.

Everyone, from the very young to the elderly, are urged to take advantage of the testing, according to the announcement of Dr. Paul Ennis of the San Bernardino County Heart Association.

In a program being coordinated by the county's Human Resources Agency, testing is being offered through the San Bernardino County Health Department, San Bernardino County Heart Association, Inland Counties Comprehensive Health Planning Council, Redlands Community Hospital and Courtesy Ambulance Service.

Persons wishing to know the time and place for testing in their area are asked to call the heart association office, 888-2441.

High blood pressure, hardening of the arteries and other cardiovascular diseases have long been considered as diseases afflicting only the aged. But this is not so, stated Dr. Ennis, these conditions are often seen in young people.

The frightening thing about high blood pressure, said Dr. Ennis, is that people are apathetic about the disease since it does not make them feel sick.

To prevent the development of a therosclerosis and to minimize the effects of high blood pressure, the heart association recommends that parents take a heart-healthy approach to raising their children and caring for themselves.

PLEADING HER CASE

Isabelle Espinosa, a Chino High School sophomore, pleads with the Chino school board at a meeting Tuesday night to retain her principal, Terry L. Terril. She and several other students handed petition to board supporting Terril.

18 more at Chino High reinstated

Eighteen more Chino High School athletes were reinstated to eligibility status Tuesday in the aftermath of mass suspensions of students for alleged drinking.

John Casey, the high school's dean of boys, told the Chino school board that all 18 of the athletes who appeared before the ethics committee were reinstated.

He added that the action brings to 20 the number who have been reinstated out of an original 37 suspensions imposed on April 28.

Casey explained, however, that the 18 reinstated Tuesday would not receive letter awards in their respective sports for this past year, because of the suspensions. Their suspensions, in effect, were upheld but students were reinstated for the coming year.

The immediate result of the reinstatements is that the 18 students will be eligible to compete in spring football, Casey said.

Out of the remaining 17 still not restored to eligibility status, some are seniors and will not appear before the ethics committee because they are graduating, Casey said. Others play only baseball and may wait until next year to go before the committee.

The committee hearings are chaired by Casey, and the panel also includes a coach, student body president, student team representative, athletic director and director of activities.

County awards pacts to rebuild golf links

Reconstruction of the much maligned Mountain Meadows Golf Course in Pomona has finally been given clearance by the Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors.

The board approved nearly $1½ million in three contracts Tuesday for the realignment and reconditioning of the course which was maimed two years ago by county roadwork.

The refurbished course, raising the number of playable holes back to 18, is expected to be completed by next spring.

The largest of the three contracts, one for $790,000, was awarded to the Siemens Contracting Inc. of Fresno. It calls for the construction of the course itself, golf cart paths, lakes, landscaping, fencing and drainage.

A second contract, to install an automatic sprinkler irrigation system at a cost of $318,000, went to the Collins Irrigation Co. of Woodland Hills.

The last job, to build a service yard and building, restrooms, entrance, at a cost of $318,800, went to the Collins Irrigation Co. of Woodland Hills.

The last job, to build a service yard and building, restrooms, entrance, parking lot, sewer line, utilities for a clubhouse and lighting for the driving range and parking lot, was contracted to the T. R. Masterson Construction Co. of El Monte for $338,400.

Supervisor Peter Schabarum said all three firms submitted bids well below the final construction cost estimates of the county's architects. The low bids were about 25 per cent below the earlier estimates, which had set the cost of the golf course at about $2 million.

Plans call for the construction of a clubhouse as a separate matter with private funds. Schabarum said space would be leased to a private concern who would build the clubhouse and operate it, with the county getting an annual rental for the use of the land.

Construction on the golf course is expected to get underway next month.

Awarding the contract marks the end of two years of haggling on the part of the supervisors as to who should build the course and how.

Originally, the course was to be built by a professional firm headed by Billy Caspar, but the supervisors killed that proposal because other firms had not been given an opportunity to compete for the job.

When no one else would compete, the supervisors decided to let the county do it. But the cost estimates proved to be higher than the board wanted to go.

The plan was finally redrawn at about two-thirds the original cost. The result was Tuesday's action.

Schabarum said he was pleased with the outcome because the county was able to obtain much lower bids than expected. He attributed to low bids to the current slowdown in the construction industry.

But resignation stands

Chino teens plead to keep principal

A strong plea to retain Terry L. Terril as Chino High School principal was made to the school board by a group of students Tuesday night.

Sandy Briones, chairman of the student campaign to keep Terril, from leaving the school, presented the board with a petition signed by 401 students.

Miss Briones and another high school student, Isabelle Espinoza, asked board members to "do what you can" to retain Terril.

Trustees took no action on the matter, and Board President Augustine Tapia indicated that Terril's recent resignation, effective Aug. 15, "stands as it is." He added that the board's acceptance of the resignation was "not an easy decision to make" but "we have no further comment."

Miss Briones told the board that when Terrils resignation was announced, "a lot of students were so unhappy they shed tears."

"We feel Dr. Terril is the best thing that's happened to Chino High School. He relates with the students very well, and we can even approach Dr. Terril with our problems."

"There are a lot of students who feel very close to Dr. Terril and I'm one of them We feel welcome in his office because there is one door on campus that is always open . . ."

Inside the door, Miss Briones said, sits Dr. Terril "who listens and who cares. You usually look up to a principal, but with Dr. Terril you look straight at him."

She added that the principal always make an effort to mingle with students, to discover their attitudes about the school, and what they feel should be changed.

Miss Briones asked the board to "make an effort to correct the problems that are forcing him to resign in protest."

When he resigned in late April, Terril said his major reason for leaving was "unprofessional conduct" by a handful of teachers. Her said he was quitting in protest.

Miss Espinosa referred bluntly to Terril's charges, in addressing the board.

"Dr. Terril resigned because he was not being supported by some of the teachers at Chino High," she said. "I am aware of this because I know some of these teachers."

"As far as I am concerned," she added," they are nothing but a bunch of radicals who want to get away with doing as little as possible."

Miss Espinoza said Terril wants to insure students of receiving a proper education, but cannot do it because "teachers won't give him their support."

She also said Terril can be approached by students with problems, and "I've gotten to know him not as a pricipal but as a friend."

Savings firm has loan: marking tool

Residents may borrow engraving tools from the Pomona First Federal Savings and Loan Association to engrave their Social Security or driver's license numbers on valuable property subject to thefts.

These tools may be signed out for 72-hour periods without charge. The service is offered to both customers and noncustomers, said officials.

Those items engraved may include television sets, stereos, appliances, cameras, paintings, bicycles, motorcycles, cars, and sporting and camping equipment.

The Social Security or driver's license numbers are used since they remain assigned to a person for all his life. The use of a driver's license number allows an officer to check suspected stolen property through the state's Department of Motor Vehicles computers.

Those who engrave their property will be given an "Operation Identification" decal to be placed at their homes. Such warnings to would-be-burglars have been a strong deterrent in communities which have adopted this program, said officials.

Persons who deal in stolen property don't like to handle merchandise which has been marked and can be identified, they explained.

Montclair obtains funds to recycle waste water

Montclair's waste water soon won't be wasted.

It will be sent to the Chino Basin Municipal Water District's treatment plant in Ontario for processing and reuse.

At present, the waste water is fed into an outfall line, taken to the Pacific Ocean and dumped.

But CBMWD officials announced today they have received $2.7 million in state and federal funds to construct a pump station and seven miles of pipelines from Montclair to the treatment plant near the Ontario National Golf Course. Total cost is estimated at $3.7 million.

Bids for the project are due July 11, and work may begin within 30 days, said Andrew Schlange, CBMWD general director.

The pipeline, measuring up to 30 inches, will be located near Philadelphia Street. It will start near Grand Avenue and the Los Angeles County line and extend east to Ontario.

The flow is expected to be 1.34 million gallons per day. Under a regional contract, the city would have first right to purchase back the treated water, said Schlange. "This is a high quality water."

Construction of a pump station is needed to overcome an elevation problem, he added.

In another matter involving CBMWD, a proposed "pump tax" to finance a study on replenishment of the Chino basin was passed Tuesday from the Assembly's Local Government Committee to the Assembly's Revenue and Taxation Committee. The measure had previously passed the Senate.

Assemblyman Bill McVittie, D-65th Dist., a supporter of the measure, said he was confident this will pass from committee onto the Assembly floor. It will then go to the governor for his signature.

Since this is an emergency measure, the tax would be enacted 30 days after signing by the governor.

The measure provides that users be charged $2 per acre foot of water pumped to finance a study of how the basin can be replenished. The pump tax will expire after three years.

Schlange reported the district proposed to start the pump tax next June 30. The amount of money to be raised will be determined by an advisory committee formed to set up a budget and decide the program.

But, he added, there is 160,000 acre feet per year that would be subject to the special tax.

But must have parents' consent

Bonita, S.D. students win case for off-campus lunch

Juniors and Seniors at Bonita and San Dimas High Schools will be allowed off-campus lunch privilege with written parental permission, beginning next week.

The decision, made by the Bonita Unified District School Board in unanimous action Tuesday had been discussed in previous meetings. The request was made by elected student representatives from the two high schools.

The students presented to the board a report containing surveys of parental feelings about the off-campus lunch, polls of merchants and businesses in San Dimas, recommendations and experiences of other school districts in the area which allow off-campus privileges and suggested conditions for the program.

Supt. James Johnson, Jr., in recommending the positive vote stated "I have never been more impressed by a group of student leaders. Their follow-through in gathering this data has been outstanding."

The program which will be in effect the last two weeks of school will not be an open campus situation. Students will have to have written parental permission in order to leave the campus during the lunch hour and further written parental permission to operate a vehicle or ride as a passenger in a vehicle. The student leaders will participate with school officials in inspection tours and monitoring the program.

Board member A. Robert Rimpau said, "I am willing to try this proposal because I like to put responsibility on students. But the students should remember it will just take one student getting in trouble to ruin the program for everyone."

A number of parents addressed the board on the subject of the off-campus lunch privilege. Mrs. Marilyn Perkins told the board that of 20 parents she had polled 18 were opposed to the plan. She said that businesses which she contacted were also opposed to the plan.

Mrs. Phyllis Johnson spoke in favor of the proposal. She opined that the students are ready for the responsibility. Dennis Clifton also spoke in favor of the plan. He pointed out that some of the students would be eligible to vote before graduation and suggested that assuming responsibility for their behavior would be an excellent learning situation.

The results of the plan will be reviewed at the end of the school year. At that time the board will consider whether the off-campus lunch privilege will be continued for the 1975-76 school year.

Health care services and controls growing—exec

Health care is the second largest industry in the United States and it has all the problems and faults of big business, said John Towers, administrator of San Antonio Community Hospital in an address at the annual meeting of the Visiting Nurse Association of Pomona-West End Tuesday.

In his talk at Griswold's Inn, Claremont, Towers said there are many programs underway to make the public more aware and more involved in the entire health care field.

In January, President Gerald Ford signed legislation which will greatly increase the public surveillance of all private health care agencies, Towers said. Part of the reason for such a government agency, which will be in action next year, is the dismal failure of private health agencies to police themselves in the past, he said.

The national system will review health institutions for appropriateness of their actions and study services to see if they should be continued or deleted.

Consumers of health programs have a right to assume that they are effective and affordable, Towers said.

He also stated that, with many other crises facing the government, national health insurance seems to be receiving a low priority in Washington, D.C. Many feel that the federally supported Medicare, Medi-Cal and Medicade programs are a counterpart of national health coverage, he added.

Among the current health trends cited by Towers are specialized service centers and more delivery of primary care services in underprivileged areas through clinics; smaller community hospitals and more shared services with larger medical centers; the use of more paramedical and specialized nursing personnel; changes in insurance programs with a greater stress on prepaid health care and preventive medicine; and a greater stress on community involvement in society's health needs.

Mrs. Jane Hull, executive director of the VNA, reported that homemaker services have risen from 2,756 hours in 1972, when the service, started to 23,561 hours in 1974. She projected 30,000 hours of service to patients in the valley in 1950.

Homemakers fill the gap that often exists in home care by assisting with general home care, infant and child care, assisting patients and shopping and meal planning. All homemakers are trained personnel who work under the supervision of the nursing care agency.

The VNA, which provides skilled nursing services under supervision of the patient's doctor, has increased its services to the community. Last year, 4,806 nursing calls were made in addition to 1,086 visits by physical therapists, 4,238 by trained home health aides, and services by speech therapists, dietitians and a medical social worker.

Ernest Payne is president of the volunteer board of directors. The agency is located at 5156 Holt Blvd., Montclair.

Girl questioned after C.O. fire

A 12-year-old girl was questioned by sheriff's arson investigators Tuesday after fire at Charter Oak home caused $12,000 structural damage and $3,000 loss of contents.

Fire officials said the girl was home alone at 10:54 a.m. when firmen responded to the alarm at 20637 Stephanie Drive to find the two rear bedrooms of the stucco-frame house fully involved in flames.

The fire had been set, firemen said. There were no injuries.

Blaze damages D.B. restaurant

Deputies from the Los Angeles County sheriff's arson unit today are investigating a fire which Monday night extensively damaged the roof and storeoom of The Fish Factory, a restaurant at 326 S. Diamond Bar Blvd., Diamond Bar.

County firemen said the loss estimate, including water damage to Coast Federal Savings and Loan Association at 328 S. Diamond Bar Blvd., was $13,500.

An arsonist is believed, to have set the fire, officials said.

Six fire units responded to the alarm, received at 10:20 p.m., and had the blaze extinguished in five minutes.

The restaurant was closed at the time of the fire. Gary Motsenbocker is owner-manager of the business.

Seek jobs for Viet lawyer and pharmacist

A Vietnamese lawyer and his pharmacist wife who speak English and French are eager to find any kind of work in the valley — they don't really care what.

Trinh Kinh was a magistrate in Saigon and his wife, a registered pharmacist. Both had previously fled from Hanoi in North Vietnam and are graduates of Saigon University. Trinh also studied law in England.

With just a few hours' notice, the couple and their three children, 5, 10 and 11, fled Saigon and were flown to Manila and Guam. The family arrived in Camp Pendleton two weeks ago.

Trinh's nephew, Le Dang Kahi, is a student at Harvey Mudd College. After being notified that the family was in California, the nephew and a classmate drove to the camp and returned to Pomona with the family.

Maureen Brians, a staff member at Pomona First Baptist Church, took the family in for a few days. The refugees are now staying temporarily with Mr. and Mrs. Richard Kerr in Diamond Bar.

Mr. and Mrs. Trinh have been issued Social Security cards and are seeking employment and an apartment. Persons wishing to assist the family may call Miss Brians at the church, 626-5277.

Clearing the air on busing

Semantics and law are clouding the forced school busing issue.

Pro and con sides of the issue cite laws and precedents coinciding with their views. But the rhetoric backed by strong arguments on each side has left the public confused.

In Southern California and many northern cities where schools never were segregated, pro-busing zealots talk of "integrating" schools. How does one integrate a non-segregated school?

What the courts and pro-busing advocates really are stating is that they want "racial balance," not integration.

Totally lost in the rhetoric and semantics of both sides is what the forward-looking 1964 Civil Rights act states in part: i.e., that no person shall be assigned to a school or any public accommodation on the basis of race, religion or creed.

But many federal judges apparently are overlooking this federal law in assigning students to schools in an effort to attain racial balance purely on the basis of race, religion or creed.

Not even the stalwart white supremacist today advocates segregated schools. They are dead and buried and all for the good of the nation.

There is no excuse for sub-par schools in poor school districts or so-called ghettos.

What we would like to know, however, so that the air may be cleared, is how, when the 1964 Civil Rights Act clearly forbids it, federal judges are assigning students to schools on the basis of race just as Southern segregationists did for a century following the Civil War.

Just in jest

Police records indicate that 20,000 Americans are murdered annually. However, a University of Chicago professor claims his mathematical study shows that each death penalty execution prevents eight murders. So, since we are attacking the murder problem mathematically, the solution is self evident. Divide 8 into 20,000 and it becomes readily apparent that all we have to do is stage 2,500 executions a year and there will be no more murders in America. — By golly! The more I think about it maybe that IS the answer.

Some nations are all talk

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — It is not what a nation preaches about equality that counts, but what it does.

By that test, if we look at each citizen's share of his own country's gross national product, and the extremes between the privileged and the underprivileged, a surprising number of free world nations seem to rank differently from what we've been led to believe. Some better, some worse.

That is, some of the most boastful on equality show up very badly indeed. Some of the most maligned show up well. For all our self criticism, the United States, Canada, Australia and the United Kingdom come out very well.

Not so for France, Sweden and Mexico, countries which unceasingly praise themselves on their equality.

In France, the top 5 per cent of the population has incomes which average 60 times those in the bottom 20 per cent. That is, the top 5 per cent absorbs a quarter of the nation's gross national product; the bottom 20 per cent divides less than 2 per cent.

In Sweden, that bastion of share-the-wealth, the average income of the top 5 per cent is 17 times that of the bottom 20.

In Mexico, the top 5 per cent has incomes which average 33 times the average incomes of the bottom 20 per cent.

By contrast, incomes among the top 5 per cent in the U.S. average out at around 10 times that of the lowest 20. Very few countries do better.

Similar but not identical tables give poor ratings to Finland, Venezuela, Iraqu, South Africa, the Philippines, Rhodesia, Brazil, Peru, Panama and other assorted lands.

Burma, India, Tanzania, Iran, Uruguay, Chile, West Germany, Argentina, the Netherlands, Norway, Denmark, New Zealand and Turkey don't get high marks either.

In the top rank — countries in which the lowest 40 per cent of the population receives 17 per cent or more of the national income — are such often-criticized countries as Pakistan, Thailand, South Korea, Taiwan, Greece, Spain and Japan. The authors of the tables put these countries in the same general ranking as the U.S., Australia, Canada and the United Kingdom.

Not all statistics are available for all countries. But there are interesting comparisons for all that. Here is little Sri Lanka, formerly Ceylon, with approximately the same per capita gross national product as India. Some 70 to 80 per cent of the small island nation are literate, compared with India's 28 per cent. Even Indonesia, which lags well behind India in per capita GNP is credited with 43 per cent literacy. Here is Taiwan, with a lower per capita GNP than Brazil, having 85 per cent literacy as compared with Brazil's 61 per cent.

In Taiwan in 1963, the top 20 per cent of the population had incomes averaging 15 times those of the lowest 20 per cent. By 1969, this ratio was lowered to five times. South Korea achieved the same low ratio.

By contrast, in Mexico, which has long boasted of its devotion to the poor, the top 20 per cent had incomes 10 times that of the lowest 20 per cent in 1950. By 1970, the upper 20 per cent had incomes averaging 16 times those of the poorest 20 per cent.

None of this is meant to suggest that all incomes should be the same, or that equality is measured by relative income. It is to suggest, however, that there may be something wrong in a country where 40 per cent of the population shares 7 per cent of the national income. And there must be something right in countries like the United States, Taiwan, Japan, Australia and Canada where the lower 40 per cent has 20 per cent or more of the nation's GNP.

Student for tax override

I am a Garey High School student. I am writing in regard to the letter printed May 9 which was written by a Pomona High student. I was amazed and angered that any student in the Pomona district would write such a letter.

Obviously, this student knows less about "what is going on in our schools" than most of the population of Pomona. If he, or she, ever took the time to read this newspaper, he would know that the state has approved the cutback of 120 teachers in the district.

This doesn't sound like a lot of "bull" to me. In fact, these teachers have already been given notice that they will not be rehired next year. These 120 teachers are not going to be the ones who will teach required classes such as math or English. They are going to be the ones that teach electives such as band and drama, or extra coaches.

The prospects of having no athletics or music programs in the schools are not inconceivable. It has happened to other school districts, and it could very well happen in Pomona. Neither bond issues or tax overrides for the schools have been passed in Pomona for years. That doesn't add up to an overload of cash in the district.

We have many fine teachers at Garey, and I am sure the same is true for Pomona and Ganesha. I do not believe that they are all acting out of selfish, mercenary motives, as this student implied in his letter. Yes, some of them do push for the tax override. Most of them would like to see it passed, as I'm sure any civic minded person would.

One of the most important assets or liabilities of any city is its school district. How many people want their children to go to a school without athletics, music, or other creative classes? Not many!

Pomona isn't going to get any better by letting its schools go down the drain. This will create far more problems than it is worth for the savings on taxes. I would think that anybody would want to vote for the tax override. It is an investment we cannot afford not to make.—Lee Davenport.

Dissension over Mayaguez

WASHINGTON — Confidential White House minutes reveal that Democratic leaders had some grave apprehensions over President Ford's daring plan to recapture the merchant ship Mayaguez.

Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield questioned the necessity for striking targets on the Cambodian mainland. "I express deep concern, apprehension and uneasiness," he told the President, "at again (hitting) the mainland. You have plenty of force, air and naval, with out hitting the mainland."

The Senate's No. 2 Democrat, Sen. Bob Byrd, D-W.Va., demanded to know why congressional leaders weren't consulted at the time of the decision, "especially to strike targets on the mainland."

"I fear," he added, "we can be charged with overreacting."

The President said he acted on the advice of the National Security Council and the military authorities, as well as "my own judgment."

"I decided that if we did too little," he said, "we would jeopardize the Marine movement in the area."

He explained that at least 2,400 Cambodian troops were "in a position on the mainland to attack our Marines."

At least one Democratic leader, Sen. James Eastland, D-Miss., heartily endorsed the military action.

"Everybody will disagree with me," he growled, "but I believe in blowing the hell out of them!"

Senate Republican leader Hugh Scott also gave his solid endorsement. "Mr. President," he said, "as a retired minor naval officer and an unretiring type of Senator, I support you entirely."

His approval was echoed by House Republican leader John Rhodes, R-Ariz., who said the use of force was "necessary absolutely."

Sen. John McClellan, D-Ark., asked why Air Force planes attacked Cambodian targets before the American merchant crewmen were rescued. The implication was that they might have been killed.

"Why," demanded McClellan, "don't we try to get them out first?"

The President said it was necessary to protect U.S. forces in the area of Tang island where the captured ship was moored. "If we don't move to protect our naval forces," he said, "I would be derelict in my duty."

Ford admitted that he had "no specific information whether Americans are on the island or the ship . . We'll have to wait and see. We'll be up most of the night."

He confided to the congressional leaders that the Chinese Communist representative in Washington refused to deliver a message to the Cambodians demanding the release of the ship. "(He) did not accept the message," reported the President. But, he added, "we believe they sent one out."

He said the U.S. Ministry in Peking finally delivered the message directly to the Cambodian embassy.

MILITARY MORASS: A scathing secret Pentagon study accuses the chief of the Army's 730,000 reservists, Maj. Gen. Milnor Roberts, of "intrigue . . . lethargy . . . and indifference" which endanger military security and demoralize the nation's back-up troops.

Yet his lackluster performance has not hurt his career. For Roberts will soon step into the prestigious job of running the 98,000-member Reserve Officers' Association, thanks to behind-the-scenes pressure by his Capitol Hill benefactor, Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C.

Thurmond, a powerful member of the Senate Armed Services Committee, is also a reserve major general, an old World War II pal of Roberts and the Association's influential past president.

But the easy-going qualities that endear Roberts to politicians got the former Pittsburgh ad man roasted in a suppressed Defense Department Task Force study headed by Deputy Assistant Army Secretary Eckhard Bennewitz.

Since 1971, when Roberts took over the 230,000 active and 500,000 ready reservists, "moral courage, industry and self-discipline" have been replaced by "lethargy . . . and indifference" in the uppermost echelons, the report states.

"Fate, luck and a certain amount of intrigue" got Roberts into his high reserve job, and he has faced the challenge with "general disinterest" and "inadequate leadership," the report goes on.

As a result, training and morale are breaking down, and the reserve, some of whose units were called up in the Vietnamese conflict, is suffering from disastrous unreadiness.

The report says units particularly in need of "intensive management" include "the three infantry brigades (in Massachusetts, Pennsylvania and Minnesota), the armor battalion in Tucson, the infantry battalion in Honolulu and the infantry battalion in Philadelphia."

While Congress has poured billions into Roberts' inefficient operation, he has seemed "unwilling to accept the grubby task of delivering the goods day after day," the Task Force memo says.

Labor speaks up for its heritage

The much-reported textbook controversy in Kanawha County, W. Va., which aroused both sympathy and ridicule elsewhere in the country, centered around charges of too much teaching about sex in the schools and not enough about religion, too much liberal social ideology and not enough patriotism.

That controversy has apparently subsided, at least the violence that marked its early stages has, as school authorities and textbook publishers have moved to meet some of the parents' objections.

Judging by a recent issue of the United Mine Workers Journal, however, the people in this and other coal-mining regions are concerned about more than sex and sociology. They are beginning to realize that the schools their children attend — sometimes right on top of the very coal fields many of these children will one day go to work in — have been given short shrift to their labor heritage.

"When I was at Cedar Grove High School they taught us American history and world history and West Virginia history," one young Kanawha County miner is quoted as saying, "but hardly anything in those courses was on unions or coal. I even took a course my junior year in Afro-American history. That's good. I'm for it — it's their (the blacks') heritage. But what about our heritage? Why isn't it taught?"

A survey of textbooks in several coal-mining states by the UMW found few of them giving more than passing mention to the long and often bitter struggle of miners to organize.

In one text widely used in West Virginia, there are four pages on coal mining, describing how and where coal was discovered in the state, how and where it is used and how production has increased.

But there is not one word, the union complains, to indicate that anyone is needed to mine that coal, let alone that anyone might have suffered to make that increased production possible.

The "worst" text it found is one used in Alabama. There is absolutely no discussion of unions and how they were formed, other than a vague reference to "labor strife" in the late 1800s.

One reason why labor history is left out of the elementary and high school grades, says the UMW, is that most teachers get little or no training in the subject in their college courses. Another reason, it claims, is that in some areas the coal companies are still able to control the school boards which decide on textbooks and course outlines.

But in the opinion of one history teacher in Kentucky, a former miner, on what he does and what he's been through has never even been suggested."

It's being suggested now, and whatever opinion one might have about some of the other objections West Virginians have raised about textbooks, the movement to focus more attention on the economic, political and cultural forces that have shaped the society their children will inherit is to be applauded —maybe, even imitated elsewhere.

Yankee optimism

The bad news out of Washington is U.S. failure in foreign affairs, soaring national debt, and disillusionment with political leadership. But the news coming out of mid-America is good. A visit to Ohio, Indiana and Illinois gives accurate indication of what are the central concerns of the United States. Here in the heartland of farms, towns and cities, one discovers helpful signals and encouraging vibrations for the future. Five days in Plymouth, Ind., revealed much about the mood of mid-America.

— Basketball is king. Indiana University is still Number One in the soul of this state. In fact, folks would rather send a team to the state finals instead of troops to Southeast Asia can't be all bad. These citizens have a sense of history. Said one supermarket manager, "Young people should be crashing the backboards, not bombing villages in Vietnam."

— The church pancake supper was a smashing success on Saturday night. These same people have a global feel for pancakes — they want to know why families around the world can't enjoy pancake suppers, too. The concern for the hungry and starving is a household topic.

"Ye Pilgrim," the Plymouth High School newspaper, reported on the impressions of Barb Ramsbey and Susan Holderead who attended a citizenship seminar in the nation's capital. The young people were concerned about world hunger and angered at the runaround they received from officials. The meeting at the Pentagon was a disaster. Said the girls, "an official told us lies and gave contradictory statements. We want to spend more on food and less on defense." For the young people in this town, bread is in, bombs out.

— The visit of President Ford to Notre Dame was applauded throughout mid-America. The Nixon administration's putdown of Rev. Theodore Hesburgh, president of the Fighting Irish, irritated Protestants as much as Roman Catholics. Remarked Presbyterian pastor James Campbell of Plymouth, "Father Hesburgh is not only a distinguished educator and civil rights advocate, but a major Christian leader. In quiet, practical ways he has done much for the ecumenical movement. Ford's coming to South Bend made the whole Christian family feel that a wrong had been righted."

— Vitality and growth is appearing in the ranks of the Christian community of mid-America. New church buildings are going up. Pentecostal pastors and mainline churchmen are participating in new expressions of fellowship and cooperation. Ordained women are accepted and seen in high posts of parish leadership. Here and there the charismatic surge is felt — but not with a "take charge" attitude. Young people flock to work camps throughout the region.

These communities of mid-America are not immune to the gloom and doom of current events. But they are looking over the hill and right now the center of the nation is talking about a bumper crop this year and that means hope for the whole world.

What a sentence for murder

Dear Ann Landers: If someone wrote and asked what you thought about a judge who sentenced a 23-year-old woman convicted of killing her husband by slashing his throat with a carving knife to teach Sunday school for five years — what would you say?

I'll bet you'd assume the letter was written by a Yale student and throw it in the wastebasket. Well, here's the clipping. You can see that this sentence was actually pronounced by a Dade County, Florida, circuit judge. The woman had previously been arrested for prostitituion and the possession of marijuana. The judge said, "It's a difficult task to get people to teach Sunday school. It's something worthwhile in my book." Will you comment, please? I am — Tongue Tied And Outraged In Miami

Dear T. T. and O.: So am I. If I had not seen the newspaper clipping, I wouldn't have believed it. Thanks for proving again that truth is stranger than fiction.

Dear Ann Landers: Maybe you've given the answer to my question dozens of times, and I never paid any attention to it because I thought it could never affect me. But now I'm having sleepless nights and I need to know something.

When a mother suspects her son is "on something," how can she tell for sure if her hunch is right? If it is right, how can she help him?

In this case, the son is not a minor, he doesn't live at home, and he avoids his father and me as much as possible. I've tried to talk to him to learn what's bothering him but he is very uncommunicative.

I might be mistaken, Ann, but he has undergone such a complete personality change — he isn't the same kid we once knew. Help us, please. — C. M.

Dear C. M.: Personality changes can be caused by something other than drugs — an organic problem, for example. There's no way an observer can tell for sure whether someone is "on something."

Your son should see a doctor at once for a complete physical checkup, and this is what you ought to suggest. If he tunes you out, you can do nothing but let him know you're there if he needs you. Good luck, dear.

Dear Ann Landers: I read with mixed emotions your reply to the person who couldn't decide whether to mail thank-you notes to friends in her own apartment building or leave them at their doors.

Your slam against the Postal Service may or may not be justified, but that crack about a letter taking six days to get from one Chicago address to another applies to only one letter out of millions.

So one kooky postman kept several tons of mail in his apartment. Why kick 750,000 loyal postal workers in the teeth? Show me a place that employs half that number and I'll show you more fruitcakes than you'll find in the postal service. — Blistered Feet

Dear Feet: It's not the postal employees I have a beef against, it's the system. Theres' GOT to be a better way, and a country that can put a man on the moon should be able to find it.

CONFIDENTIAL to Batting One Thousand In Boston: I hope you will take a few minutes out of your sex life to read this. The fact that you are such a howling success as an alley cat does nothing to elevate you in the eyes of anyone worth impressing.

Snow bothers collie's eyes

DEAR DR. MILLER: Twice we took Rodney, our collie, up in the snow with us. Both times he acted afterwards like his eyes were pretty sore. We figured sort of a snow blindness, since he was the only one that wasn't wearing goggles. If the snow bothers his eyes that much, we're worried about him being out on the boat with us this summer, if the sun off the water won't bother his eyes, too? Should we try to fit him with a pair of sunglasses? — D.A.

DEAR D.A.: Shades for Rodney? Not a bad idea, albeit difficult to find a fit. Still, anatomically speaking, a collie's eyes are reasonably well protected from the sun when compared to a human's. Collies can have congenital eye problems. The very fact Rodney revealed this sensitivity should be a signal for a competent eye examination. This should be step one in his sight-saving program.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Our squirrel, Chipper's favorite foods are cut up bread and oranges. Is this OK? What other foods would he eat? — J.J.

DEAR J.J.: If the bread is a coarse ground, whole grain variety, his present diet isn't bad. It could be improved, though, with a variety of grains, nuts, sunflower seeds and perhaps sliced apple.

DEAR DR. MILLER: It's been a lot of years since I used to raise ferrets, but I very distinctly remember that when a jill and a hob got together they were actually mating for a good hour at a time. A bar buddy of mine is betting me $20 that this just can't be. He thinks because ferrets are high-strung, nervous little animals it would all be over in a minute. Please tell him — I need the 20 bucks. — T. McD.

DEAR T.McD.: Ferrets are fast, but not at everything. The jill and hob have at it for anywhere from ten minutes to three hours. For them, an hour is a reasonable average.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Outcrossing in the mating of parakeets is, I understand, breeding parakeets with no common ancestry. What, though, is the kind of breeding referred to as heterosis? — E.D.

DEAR E.D.: Heterosis is the breeding together of selected brothers and sisters for many generations to establish strains with all gene pairs alike (homozygouis). With this long-term intense inbreeding, undesirable qualities can be more effectively culled. Eventually, in the eighth generation, usually the lines are crossed. The hoped-for result is larger, more vigorous, more fertile, better-looking — a super parakeet.

Tablecloth used for calculating

You've heard about the British exchequer? Originally, a checkered tablecloth was used in that office as a calculating device. It was the tablecloth that gave the exequer its name.

THAT VODKA is now the No. 1 liquor in sales nationwide has been reported. With bourbon a close No. 2. That's not true among those snazzy fellows known as executives, however. Scotch is their No. 1 drink, far and away. Their No. 2 is gin.

Checking not for chicks

I told an amusing story at dinner the other night about the town librarian who was closing up the library when she was accosted by a man demanding money.

She said, "I don't have any," at which time the crook proceeded to frisk her rather thoroughly. When he had finished he grumbled, "You're right," and started to walk away when the librarian said, "Just a minute. If you frisk me one more time I'll write a check."

When I finished the story, my husband just sat there, his face a mask of tragedy.

"Did you get it?" I asked.

"I was just thinking," he said slowly. "I'll bet she never recorded the check.

"You are paranoid about recording checks," I snapped. "The trouble with you is that you expect people to record every check they've ever written."

"I expect you to regard the checkbook as something other than fiction. Speaking of fiction, you wouldn't happen to know where you wrote check No. 1138, would you?"

"Of course I know. I wrote it after check No. 1137. What does my entry say in the checkbook?"

"It says, 'see me.' "

"How do you know the 'me' is me?" I said defeneively.

"Because it is written with a blue eye liner."

"I recorded it somewhere. Just let me check around."

I dumped out my purse and a white breath mint with fuzz rolled to the edge of the table. I picked it up and read, "Check No. 1093, Cash, 2/18/75. Did you get this one?" I asked.

His eyes rolled back in his head.

"Here's one," I said. "Its' either check No. 936 for $10.85 or check 1085 for $9.36."

"Let me have it," he said tiredly.

"Are you crazy? It's written on the back of my Social Security card. How careless do you think I am? Let's see now, check No. 1138. Did you throw away the invitation to Jack and Ardi's party? I wrote a check at the supermarket that I recorded on my cash register tape. Or was it on the green stamps which I just pasted in the book. Wait a minute, here it is. Check No. 1138."

"It's blank," he said smiling.

"Not really. There's an autograph on the back. I was in a book department and I thought someone said Mark Twain was there."

"He's dead."

"I know, but I didn't want to take the chance."

Enlarged prostate symptoms

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am 60 and I have been to a urologist who, by examination, has told me I have an enlarged prostate gland.

I have been bothered by having to get up two to five times a night and urgency by day.

The doctor has told me that I should have the prostate gland removed. I always thought the removal of the gland meant an end to sex life. My doctor says that this not true in all cases. Please give me your opinion on this subject.

DEAR READER — An enlarged prostate would not make much difference if it were not for its location. When enlargement is associated with obstruction of the bladder outlet, symptoms such as those you complain of are common.

Unfortunately the only way the symptoms can be relieved is by removing the obstruction. That means an operation. If uncorrected the obstruction just gets worse and often leads to infections of the urinary tract and other complications.

There are several different kinds of prostate trouble, those that are simply an acute infection (more common than is often realized), the chronic obstructive type, and cancer of the prostate. The treatment really depends upon the basic problem. For more information about prostate trouble and treatment, write to me in care of the Progress Bulletin, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019, and ask for The Health Letter on the Prostate (number 1-6). Send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope and 50 cents for mailing and costs.

Whether an operation will affect your sex life or not depends a lot on the type of operation. The common closed operation that is done through the urethra without making any incision in the skin usually permits a return to a normal sex life. When the gland has to be surgically removed through an incision, the likelihood of a return to normal is not as good.

Some men have a loss of capacity about the same time as the operation but would have had a problem anyway even if they had not had an operation. However, many men much older than you have had a prostate operation and regained normal function. Good luck!

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am taking two or three pantothenic acid tablets per day for arthritis. A friend suggested this and said it has helped a number of people. Do you feel that it should be good for arthritis suferers? Could this amount be harmful in any way?

DEAR READER — I can see many benefits in taking a simiple daily vitamin preparation for people who, for a variety of reasons, may not be eating the best diet in the world.

The biggest danger in vitamin popping is in using vitamins for medical problems they can in no way help. The use of pantothenic acid for arthritis is one such example. Your well meaning friend is a "quack." Avoid any more medical advice from that source.

Pantothenic acid will not help arthritis at all. Relying on a vitamin for arthritis may delay obtaining proper medical treatment that could help. The good side is that the amount of pantothenic acid you are taking won't hurt you, the excess will simply be eliminated from the body.

You should see your doctor about your arthritis and see if you need special care or are in need of medicine.

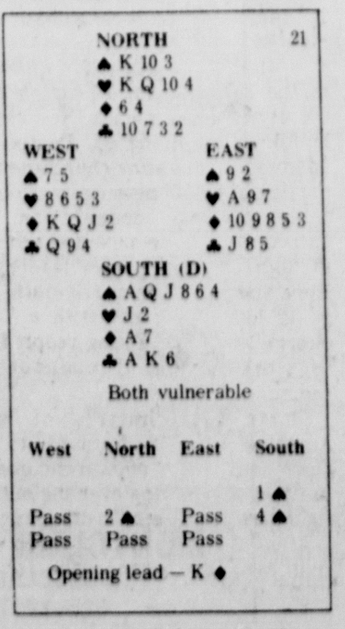
Jacoby's bridge

South stumps the experts

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Today's hand is of little interest to rubber bridge players since South's four spade contract is ironclad. In fact five is laydown after the diamond lead while any other opening makes six a cinch.



South was hit with the diamond lead, but with help from expert opponents managed to make six anyway.

He took the first diamond, cashed his queen of trumps, led the deuce of hearts and called for dummy's king after West followed with the five.

East ducked quickly. He assumed that West would have echoed with an even number of hearts and therefore held three. In that case the duck couldn't hurt and might bother South later on in case one of West's hearts was the jack.

Then South called for dummy's four of hearts. This time East entered into communion with nature. Could West have failed to echo with four hearts to the jack. In that case, it behooved East to duck.

Finally East made the wrong decision and ducked. South's jack won the trick. After that it was easy to lead a trump to dummy's ten, play the queen of hearts, ruff East's ace, go back to dummy with the king of trumps, discard the losing diamond on the ten of hearts and make six for a top score.

CARD SENSE

The bidding has been: 21

West North East South

You, South, hold:
♠ K Q 9 8 5 ♥ A ♦ A 4 ♣ A 9 8 7 6
What do you bid?

A — Bid one club. With this strong a hand you violate the normal rule of bidding the higher of two five-card suits and bid one club. This exception only applies when you hold clubs and spades.

TODAY'S QUESTION

You bid one club. Your partner responds one diamond. What do you do now?

The musk ox is an odd-looking animal that resembles a small, shaggy-haired buffalo.

A fully grown musk ox may be a little over four feet high at the shoulders and weigh 700 pounds.

The musk ox is not really an ox. It is a relative of goats and antelopes.

The first part of the animal's name is also inaccurate — it has no musky odor, as was once believed.

In the wild, musk oxen are found on the treeless tundra and snowfields of Canada and Greenland.

They travel in small herds. When threatened by wolves that prey upon them, the herd forms a protective circle around the young. No wise wolf would attack such a fortress of tossing horns!

Once hunted almost to extinction, the now-protected musk oxen are being raised much like sheep for the silky wool, called "quiviut," that grows underneath their shaggy coats.

Garments made of quiviut are very warm and light in weight.

Here's wonderful news! A pocket radio, camera, World Almanac globe or other fine prize will be awarded to the first younster sending in a question used here. Send your question and your age to Johnny Wonder, (c/0 this newspaper), Box 1335 (DA), Santa Cruz, CA 95061.

Steel hikes forecast

NEW YORK (AP) — America's steel industry plans to increase its production capacity 8.5 per cent from the present 152-153 million tons to 165-166 million tons by 1977, reports 33 Magazine.

The magazine also reports that steep price rises are in store.

The publication attributes the capacity decision to strong steel demand, profit levels which have become more acceptable and favorable short-to-medium term future prospects.

Avert world crisis?

Insects a good source of food

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — A possible food source that has more protein than meat, fewer calories than vegetables and is cheaper than both may drive you a little bit buggy.

University of Wisconsin entomology Prof. Gene De Foliart is studying how insects might one day be used to avert a world food crisis.

His studies, on all types of bugs from termites to houseflies, show that there's really nothing wrong with eating most insects.

"There is no doubt about the quality of insects as food," he said, "but the subject has hardly been considered. A lot of insects are used for food in more primitive cultures, but not in the more civilized parts of the world."

The problem, he said, is that most people just can't stomach the idea of sitting down to a crisp green salad of creepy crawlers or a spider loaf sandwich.

"Many people have a natural revulsion to the idea of eating insects," De Foliart said.

He said Americans eventually may eat insects directly, but certainly not until the public is gradually persuaded that a bug burger is as good as a hamburger.

"I don't know if we'll ever get people to eat insects directly," he said. "It might come to that, but not right away in this country."

Damien stays alive, 6-3

By KEVIN CLOE
PB Staff Writer

EL MONTE — Damien High is now three steps away from a CIF baseball championship.

The San Antonio League champion Spartans (22-5) slipped into the quarterfinals of the 3-A playoffs Tuesday afternoon by handing host Mountain View (13-8) a 6-3 defeat behind the pitching and hitting of Frank Pastore.

The Spartans' hard-throwing righthander couldn't keep the Vikings off the base paths, but they couldn't keep him off either.

On the mound, Frank gave up seven hits and fanned 11 in another stellar performance to give him 13 victories for the year without a loss.

At the plate, the SAL's Most Valuable Player went two-for-two, walked once and drove in two runs with a booming second-inning triple.

The rest of the Damien batters also kept their momentum from the Barstow game going by scoring five runs on five hits in the first two innings against Mt. View's ace hurler, Albert Del Valle.

The Viking pitcher entered the contest with a 6-0 record.

However, Pastore also had a rough time in the first couple innings.

"Those guys can really hit," noted the strong senior hurler. "My fastball was moving around pretty well, but they were hitting it. That's a good hitting club."

Mt. View's Troy and Steve Tillett slapped back-to-back singles against Pastore to open the bottom of the first inning. After one out, Robert Hempel's ground ball to the middle of the infield scored Troy.

Then in the second inning, Frank got two quick outs before allowing three consecutive Viking singles — scoring another run.

The Upland resident proceeded to retire 14 of the next 16 batters he faced. He got in a little more trouble in the seventh on a Spartan throwing error, a fielder's choice and a run-scoring double. But that's all the Vikings could do against him.

Now Damien will face Rancho Alamitos, a 2-0 winner over Nogales Tuesday, in the quarterfinals Friday at a site yet to be determined.

The starting pitcher for that one won't be decided by head coach Matt Kolodge until Thursday. Pastore, however, is a strong possibility.

"He (Fran) threw more pitches today than I had hoped," the veteran skipper revealed. "I'll wait until Thursday and see how he feels."

The Damien bats looked healthy in the first three innings against Mt. View.

In the first inning, Bobby Alexander led off with a bloop single to left, stole second, and scored one out later on John Pignotti's line single to left. Pignotti (two-for-three at the plate) advanced to second on the wide throw to the plate, stole third, and scored on a bad throw to third.

Ed Enriquez reached base on an error and Kurt Kutyla singled to open Damien's half of the second inning. Don Casper then advanced the runners on a sacrifice bunt, and Pastore clubbed his two-run triple to left-center.

In the third inning, Pignotti singled, reached second on an error, advanced to third on a fielder's choice, and scored on Mark Lopez' sacrifice fly to left.

Pastore got Damien's final rally of the game going in the sixth when he walked with one out. Mike Kelleher then ran for Frank, advanced to second on a passed ball, and scored on Bob DeBolt's two-out single to left.

WBA: room for one more?

Jerry Chambers and a pal, Don Gordon, are bankrolling something called the World Basketball Association.

Chambers, a former Los Angeles Laker forward, is the commissioner of the new organization which is out to revoluntionize pro baskeball for the benefit of fans and players.

Gordon, who Chambers describes as a sports entrepreneur, is a former TV producer and account executive for ABC.

"This is a brand new concept in basketball at the professional level," Chambers said about a month ago as the six teams of the WBA opened its first season.

"Our league is going to return basketball to the fan. It's going to be a fine example of what the name should be."

The WBA plays its game under international rules, Chambers explained. Contests are scheduled all over Southern California with some tentative dates set for Mexico and other Latin countries.

The WBA begins its sixth week Saturday with a doubleheader at La Verne College's Supertent. The Long Beach Tide is scheduled to play the Inland Empire Concord at 8:30 p.m. An exhibition between the Los Angeles Tremor and a Mexican team will precede the main event at 7 p.m. Tickets are reasonably scaled at $3 for adults, $2 for students and $1 for children under 12. Other teams in the league are the Orange County Comets, San Ferenando Styles and the Pasadena Settlers.

82-game schedule

The new league is in the midst of an 82-game schedule. The champion will play tournaments in Algiers and Paris as a reward for winning the title.

Chambers and Gordon forked out about $10,000 initially to get the league off the ground. Optimistic, they expect to get it back and then some in the not too distant future.

Chambers believes there is an abundance of basketball talent unused or discarded by the rival NBA and ABA, who specators, tired of paying inflated ticket prices, will come to see at reasonable rates.

Some of the "names" in the league: Bob Rule of the Los Angeles Tremor, a former star at Riverside City College, Colorado State and the NBA Seattle Sonics. Raymond Lewis the All-CIF scoring wizard who went on to Cal State L.A. Ex-Laker Bill Turner and ABA stars Sam Robinson and Sam Cash.

Two well-known valley stars who played at Azusa Pacific and are now with the Pasadena team are Dennis Vanzant and Rick Reed. Former Pomona High basketball coach Ed Taylor is coaching the Long Beach team.

Under international rules, games will be played with 20 minute halves, a 30 second clock and no free throw shooting until 10 fouls have been committed.

Pure basketball

"This is pure basketball and we feel the other pro leagues, will have to adopt some of our changes or risk losing what they have," said Chambers. "For example, when I played in the NBA, you messed around for three quarters and played basketball in the fourth quarter to decide the winner. For that, the fan gets to pay $8 to $10 a seat to watch 15 minutes of real basketball."

Chambers has a point. But his WBA's chances for success would seem remote at best.

The WBA is entering a saturated market in Southern California. If there's one thing no one is asking for it's another professional sports league.

But the international flavoring has appeal which might be the new league's salvation.

International teams sell out a renovated arena in Tijuana almost everytime games are scheduled.

Around the workd, basketball, which is an American invention, has taken a long time to catch on. But a number of Eastern European countries have adopted it and are fast catching up to American teams.

"The competition is getting tougher, there's no doubt about that," says Chambers. "But this is an American sport and we ought to remain dominant. I think we will."

Bomb mars Dodger game

By BILL LANGLEY
PB Sports Editor

LOS ANGELES — It's still too early to say the Chicago Cubs are for real but team with the best record in baseball is fooling the experts so far.

The Eastern Division leaders reclaimed the best record thanks to former UCLA star Bill Bonham's two-hit pitching Tuesday night as the Cubs edged the Dodgers, 2-1, in the second game of a four-game series between the National League's division leaders.

With the win, Chicago increased its lead in the East to 2½ games with a 22-13 record (.629) while the Dodgers maintain a five-game edge in the West at 25-15 (.625).

One sure sign the surprising Cubs have arrived is the way the radical element in the Dodger Stadium left-field pavilion has reacted to them.

Now the Cubs have become a target for the ever-increasing rowdy element at the park.

Tuesday's game was marred by a cherry bomb being thrown from the pavilion in the fourth inning. The bomb landed close to Chicago center-fielder Rick Monday.

Monday immediately ran to the infield. After conferences between the umpires and both managers, Monday returned to his position with the cheers of the 24,526 fans not approving of the extracurricular activities.

There were no further incidents but the season has become one where something new and violent seems to happen every night in the pavilion.

In trying to correct the situation, the Dodgers have suspended beer sales in the pavilion for the remainder of the week.

"I just told the umpires to get some help or I wasn't going back out there," Monday explained. "All it takes is a couple of pea brains to ruin this game of baseball for everybody else. It's time that the thousands of honest people who really enjoy bringing their families and watching a good game speak up and see that something is done to stop this stuff."

The small group of rowdy Dodger fans created more noise than the Dodgers as Bonham (4-3) was in complete control. The righthander from UCLA allowed only a harmless single to Ron Cey in the second inning and a home run to Lee Lacy in the fourth.

After Lacy's homer, Bonham retired 18 of the final 19 batters in easy fashion.

"I had as good stuff as I've had all year," Bonham said. "I have to compare this game to the three-hit shutout I pitched against Montreal earlier this season."

Cubs' Manager Jim Marshall is delighted his club has gotten off to such a good start.

"I suppose every manager says the same thing but we'll go as far as our starting pitchers take us," Marshall said.

It was another tough loss for Don Sutton, who is only 4-16 lifetime against the Cubs.

Chicago scored both of its runs in the first inning when Jose Cardenal doubled, Monday drew a walk, Bill Madlock doubled and Adrian Garrett brought Monday in with an infield out.

Sutton allowed only three singles the rest of the way but all he had to show for it was his third loss of the season.

"It's unexplainable," Sutton said about his record against the Cubs.

DODGER DATA — Former Dodger lefthander Geoff Zahn (0-1) will be pitching for the Cubs tonight (7:30) against his former teammates. Andy Messersmith (6-0) will be on the mound for L.A. Thursday's finale has Ray Burris (5-2) vs. Burt Hooton (1-4).

Zahn is a replacement for righthander Steve Stone (5-0), who will miss a turn because of a sore shoulder.

The Cubs snapped an eight-game losing streak-against the Dodgers.

Dodger Manager Walt Alston will be missing the rest of the week as he will be attending the funeral of his father, Emmons Alston, 82, who died Wednesday morning in Oxford, Ohio. Coach Tom Lasorda will manage the club tonight through Sunday.

Namath leaning to WFL

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP) — Free-agent quarterback Joe Namath says he is leaning toward the World Football League's $4 million offer, which he describes as more than fair.

But leaning does not mean falling, and Namath said Tuesday he still doesn't know which way he'll go.

His other options are retirement from the game or acceptance of the New York Jets' reported million-dollar offer to reenlist with the National Football League team.

Namath, who played out his option with the Jets last season, took time out from a Tuesday round of golf to comment:

"I want to play football, and I'll play with Chicago if things work out. The people in the WFL have about got me convinced it's going to work.

"I hope the league does survive, because it creates more jobs and entertainment. There are a lot of fine players who don't have the opportunity to play now."

If he jumps to the yearling WFL, Namath would be signed by the Chicago Winds.

Winds owner Eugene Pullano held his first toe-to-toe meeting with Namath Monday night in what WFL President Chris Hemmeter described as a big step that would tell the WFL whether it had landed the talented performer.

A.D. finally turns to Sun

ANAHEIM — It was unofficially official early this morning. Anthony Davis is now a member of the World Football League's Southern California Sun.

The Anaheim-based WFL club scheduled a press conference this morning apparently to announce the signing.

"It's true," Sun president Larry Hatfield was quoted as saying Tuesday about the rumor of the signing, "and everyone here is going bananas."

Davis, who played three exciting seasons for USC, turned down an offer from the New York Jets of the National Football League. The Jets drafted Davis in the second round.

Montreal of the Canadian Football apparently was also in the running for Davis' services. Anthony was drafted by the Minnesota Twins, but decided against giving baseball a try.

Sabres top the Flyers

BUFFALO (AP) — It had been a long day. It had been hot and humid — definitely not hockey weather. But long after midnight, some 12 hours after their light pre-game skate Tuesday, the Buffalo Sabres didn't seem to mind.

They had beaten the Philadelphia Flyers for the first time in 15 games, dating back to March 28, 1973. They had beaten Flyers goalie Bernie Parent for the first time in their five-year history. They had come from behind three times to do it.

Defenseman Jerry Korab said he was too tired to take a shower. "If I had a beer right now, I'd pass out," he said.

But there was a smile on his face; the effort had been worth it. The 5-4 overtime triumph over the Flyers had cut Philadelphia's lead to 2-1 in the best-of-seven game National Hockey League championship series and had given the Sabres some breathing room in the heavy Buffalo air.

"We had to win this one. Your body is tired, but your mind keeps you going," said Sabres' forward Jim Lorentz.

"We had to give 110 per cent and we did," Korab said.

It wasn't easy. The heat and humidity had made playing conditions unbearable. A fog descended on the Memorial Auditorium surface and frequently forced play to halt. Beyond that, the teams were tied 4-4 after the regulation three periods and had to work overtime until Rene Robert's 20-foot slap shot ended the action at 18:29 of overtime.

Warriors pull out another

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The Golden State Warriors did it again the hard way.

"I'd hate to go through a full season of games like this," Coach Al Attles said Tuesday night after his team survived the frantic final seconds of a 92-91 victory over Washington and took a 2-0 lead in the National Basketball Association championship series.

The Warriors, who won the series opener after trailing once by 16 points, came from 13 points behind in game No. 2.

"We try to lull them to sleep," Attles joked, trying to laugh off the tension of a fourth quarter in which his team blew an eight-point lead and finally won on Rick Barry's two free throws with 23 seconds remaining.

Golden State's latest improbable victory came in the Cow Palace, an arena the team hasn't used since 1971. Game No. 4 is scheduled on the same court Friday night.

"I never felt we were in the clear. They're too good a team," said the Bullets' Mike Riordan who gave Washington a 91-90 lead with a three-point play 1:01 from the end, then fouled Barry.

"I didn't seem to have much energy left. I'm just glad it didn't go into overtime," admitted Barry, whose free throws ended the scoring but not the drama.

The Bullets, who went into this best-of-seven series as heavy favorites, called a time out and Coach K.C. Jones planned a play to get the ball to Phil Chenier, who had 30 points already.

"We played great defense in those 23 seconds. We didn't let them do what they wanted to do," said Barry, who finished the game with 36 points.

Chenier, hemmed in by Keith Wilkes and Charles Johnson, passed off to Riordan who tried a 15-foot shot from the right side over Barry with about five seconds to go.

"I just blew the shot, that's all," said Riordan.

Elvin Hayes took the rebound after Riordan's missed shot and hurried up another shot which fell short.

Phil Smith, the Warriors' rookie guard, had switched to cover Hayes.

"Any time Elvin puts a shot up, there's a 50-50 chance it's going in," Smith said. "I just tried to make him shoot deeper from the baseline than he wanted to. He knew there were only a few seconds left. Time was a big element. Maybe I was a little one."

The Warriors' George Johnson grabbed Hayes' missed shot just before the final buzzer sounded.

Then the 13,225 Warriors' fans who filled the Cow Palace sent up the loudest noise heard in the cavernous building since Republicans at the 1964 GOP Convention cheered Barry Goldwater into the path of a Democratic landslide.

The Bullets led by 13 points several times in the second period. The Warriors cut the margin to six, 52-46, by halftime but were down by 11 early in the third quarter.

Then the Warriors quickly caught and passed the Bullets, leading 88-80 on Smith's dunk shot with 7:36 left in the game. But Golden State made only one more field goal in the game.

"We hung in with tough defense," said Barry. "We didn't let them close the gap on us too quickly."

But, as Riordan saw it, "The shots just weren't dropping for us."

Some of the Warriors have said, "We're a team of destiny."

La Verne, Linfield in rematch

The fighting La Verne College baseball team, the "komeback kids" of the District III baseball tournament took off for Portland, Ore. today to defend its NAIA Area One championship.

Coach Ben Hines will send Dan Quisenberry (14-6) against Linfield College (Ore.) in the opening game Thursday night at 8:30 p.m.

The rematch between last year's finalists shapes up as a battle of bombers. Both teams had .326 averages and both powered their way through the district playoffs.

La Verne averaged 15 runs a game in winning four of five contests enroute to the District III title. Linfield scored 40 runs (11, 18 and 11) or an average of 13 runs per game in winning its district championship.

Linfield is led by designated hitter Jeff Cammann, a .465 hitter. Six of the remaining seven players averaged over .300. Third baseman Bob Edwards hit .396; first baseman Jeff Weins .365; outfielders Tom Lopez and Rod Ingram .360 and .352; shortstop Mike Rex .333 and second baseman Dan Barnes .304.

Ingram was the leading batter in the playoffs for Linfield with a sizzling .625 average followed by Barnes at .600. Weins batted .583 and two other players, Edwards and Lopez, hit over .400. Edwards averaged .455 and Lopez .417. Rex hit .385.

Like the Leopards (27-16-1), Linfield (18-16) relied mainly on two pitchers this year. They are lefthander Dick Cahill and Don Rutschman, both veterans of last year's club.

Cahill, who pitched a doubleheader against La Verne in the finals last year, has had arm problems this year and his 4-3 record and 3.35 earned run average is not nearly as impressive as last year when he had a 9-1 mark and an ERA under 1.00.

Rutschman, son of Linfield coach Ad Rutschman, has a 5-1 record with a 3.79 earned run average. Third pitcher in line is likely to be Glen Heard, who was the Most Valuable Player on a championship American Legion team last year. But Heard has done little pitching for Linfield.

Averages for Lewis-Clark College (Ida.) (35-14) were not available as of press time. But the team reportedly is deep in pitching. During the regular season, Lewis-Clark once played four doubleheaders back to back. It used 12 pitchers in the eight games and split with Gonzaga and Eastern Washington while sweeping Linfield and Northern Washington.

However, it was pointed out that Linfield has just finished a series with Oregon and Oregon St. of the Pac-8.

In a three-game series with Northwest Nazarene, Lewis-Clark used eight pitchers and came up with three successive no-hitters.

Lewis-Clark draws a bye Thursday but plays two games Friday. Friday's schedule calls for La Verne to play Lewis-Clark at 6 p.m. and Linfield to face Lewis-Clark at 8:30 p.m.

Saturday's championship game is slated for 6 p.m. If a second game is necessary, it will be played at 8:30 p.m.

All games will be played at Sckavon Field on Portland's southeast side. The park is a hitter's park.

"It's about 330 feet down the foul lines in right and left field," said coach Ben Hines, whose Leos won at Sckavon in 1972. "But it doesn't drop off in center like some parks do and we have good power in the power alleys (left center and right center)."

Romans head to semis

By CRAIG TRAVIS
PB Correspondent

Royal Oak High experienced a realm of sensations in its CIF 2-A baseball quarterfinal game Tuesday afternoon.

Over the span of seven innings, the Romans advanced from the basement to the penthouse, went from cold to hot, and shook off a case of the D.T.'s (delirium tremors) to wind up delirious.

Coach Doug Majors' Hacienda League runners-up scored four runs in the bottom of the seventh inning to nip visiting Norco High, 4-3, as Ken Gabriel's shallow fly to left field fell in front of Wayne Cavalucci, allowing Mark Dimitruk and Chris Lancaster to score the tying and winning runs.

Throttled on just two hits by righthander Derrick Feaster, Royal Oak (13-4) made the most of every opportunity in its final at bat.

Don Dutton reached base on an error to start things. After Steve Hanks was caught looking at a third strike Bob Cochran's ground ball bounded over second baseman Jerry Walling's shoulder for a hit, with pinch runner (for Dutton) Larry Vicino moving to third. Whit Gill accounted for R.O.'s first run with a scoring fly ball.

Mark Dimitruk sent Cochran to third with a single and pinch hitter Chris Lancaster, called up from the junior varsity for the playoffs, singled to right to drive in the second run. Dimitruk went to third on the hit and Lancaster stole second.

Then with the outfield playing deep, Gabriel — a lefthanded hitter — stroked a 1-2 curve to left field to drive home the winning runs.

Major, despite some reservations about pulling the game out, never ruled a comeback out of the picture.

"This is the way we've been going all year," said the elated Romans skipper after the game. "I thought that if we could get a runner on (in the seventh), we could apply some pressure. But when we got that second out, I had some doubts." But we're a scrappy team. We fight hard for everything we can get."

"They had been playing us deep the entire game," continued Major, while referring to Gabriel's bloop hit. "We should have been trying to just pop the ball over the infield. When Kenny hit it, I thought it had a chance to fall in for a hit."

R.O.'s attitude change was most evident during the rally as everyone — players and fans alike — were on their feet. Earlier in the game, the players seem to be feeling the blahs as they complained many times, vocally, on called strikes (so did the Roman fans), had one player get kicked out of the game for fighting (Randy Delva), and on several occasions threw helmets and bats in disgust.

Despite all of the disruptions, Cochran was calmly keeping his team in the game with his pitching. While having an off day on the mound, the hard throwing southpaw (10-3) struck out nine and walked four, pitched out of jams in every inning but the second and the sixth.

"I didn't throw real well today," said the composed Cochran. "I didn't have much of a curve but my fastball was moving well. My arm felt okay, just a little tired. I don't have the real quick arm action I had earlier in the year."

Matt Barrow is due to hurl for the Roman against Rio Mesa on Friday. But Cochran will be available if necessary. He'e 3-0 in the playoffs, hurling 18 innings, allowing four runs and 12 hits.

Nogales bumped out of playoffs

GARDEN GROVE — Rancho Alamitos High's Mike Will hurled a one-hitter Tuesday afternoon and snapped Nogales High's 12-game winning streak in the CIF 3-A baseball playoffs, 2-0.

Will, who had seven strikeouts and four walks, gave up the only Nogales hit in the fourth inning when Art Montano singled.

The first three batters in Rancho Alamitos' lineup collected seven of the team's eight hits against Nogales ace Art Salgado.

Pete Bruneaux went two-for-three at the plate, while Ken Nemeth went three-for-four. Bob Spriggs collected two hits in three trips to the plate, including a run-scoring double.

Salgado, whose record dipped to 9-2 for the season with the loss, struck out four Rancho batters and walked only one.

Nogales finished its season with a 19-5 record after winning its second consecutive Montview League championship. The Nobles won their last 11 league games and opened CIF playoff competition last Friday with a 5-2 victory over San Bernardino.

Rancho Alamitos will not face San Antonio League champion Damien Friday in the quarterfinals of the 3-A playoffs. Damien defeated Mt. View, 6-3, Tuesday in the second round.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Roger Bucksin of Portland, Ore. was signed Tuesday to face welterweight hopeful Carlos Palomino in a 10-round fight Thursday night.

Buckskin replaces Ezra Davis of Nevada who withdrew because of the flu, an Olympic Auditorium spokesman said.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The PGA tournament players' division will hold a spring competition for the first time since 1969. A limited number of players will be invited to attend classes and six rounds of golf at North Myrtle Beach, S.C., June 9-14.

A second competition will be held in November at a site to be determined.

Cheetahs erase six meet marks

DENVER, Colo. — Four individuals and two relay teams from the Southern California Cheetahs girls track club established meet records at the recent Colorado Gold Invitational.

Charm Bishop in the 12-13 age group set a meet record in winning the javelin with a distance of 125 feet, 9 inches. She also finished first in the discus with a mark of 100 feet, 5 inches, and competed on the Cheetahs' fourth-place "B" mile relay team.

In the same age division, Lisa Peters recorded a meet record in the high jump at a height of 5 feet, 1 inch. She also ran on the Cheetahs' winning "A" mile relay team, which finished in 4:06.0.

Tina Scott, competing in the 10-11 age group, set meet records in both the 220 (26.8 seconds) and the 100 (11.9 seconds). Tina also anchored the area track club's second-place 440 relay team.

Stacy Granger, in the 9 years and under age group, also set two meet records at the Invitational. She won the 100 in 12.7 seconds and the 220 in 29.0 seconds. Also, she anchored the Cheetahs' record-breaking 440 relay team, which won in 59.3 seconds.

The Cheetahs' 440 relay team consisted of Tanya Granger, Evva Crowell, Blair Bates and Stacy. The 880 relay team also recorded a meet record in 2:06.0. That quartet included Tanya Granger, Miss Crowell, Miss Bates and Stacy Melton.

The Cheetahs are scheduled to compete in San Diego this weekend.

Poly recruits JC cage star

Cal Poly has announced its first basketball recruit for the 1975-76 season.

Coach Don Hogan said Mark Bernhard, a 6-foot-8, 225-pounder from San Diego Mesa College, has signed a letter of intent to attend Poly.

Bernhard, who played two seasons at Mesa, averaged 15.7 points and nine rebounds a game last year. He was named to the All-Tournament team at the Chaffey Invitational Tournament after leading Mesa to a second place finish behind Mt. San Antonio College.

In his two games against MSAC, Bernhard scored 16 and 21 points. He also scored 16 for the South Coast Conference All-Stars against champion Cerritos.

"We're very pleased Bernard is joining us," Hogan said. "He will figure in our plans greatly. He adds some needed size to our team. He is a physical rebounder with good offensive moves."

Bernhard, who played his high school ball at Morse in San Diego, said he selected Poly after considering UC Irvine, Cal Poly San Luis Obispo, Seattle Pacific, Alaska and Fort Lewis (Colo.).

"I enjoyed my visit to the campus and meeting the players," Bernhard said. "The coaching staff impressed me as being very human. I plan to major in art with a physical education minor."

Poly gets pair on CCAA club

Cal Poly Pomona's top battery mates — pitcher Vic Bernal and catcher Jim Pryor — have been named to the All-CCAA first team.

Bernal, who was drafted last January by the Minnesota Twins, posted a 5-7 record this season with an earned run average of 3.22.

Pryor led the all-league selections in hitting with a .389 average — one percentage point higher than that of Jason Thompson of Cal State Northridge, who was named the CCAA's most valuable player.

League champion Cal State Northridge dominated the first team, with four of its players named to the squad. In addition, Coach Bob Hiegert of Northridge was selected Coach of the Year.

Second baseman Mark Bumstead, formerly of Bonita High and Mt. San Antonio College, and first baseman Ted Bailey, formerly of chaffey high were chosen for the second team.

Bumstead, a junior at Cal State Northridge, batted .310 this season while Bailey, a junior at Cal Poly San Luis Obispo, hit .287.

Sports news in brief

NEW YORK (AP) — The World Team Tennis East-West Championship, first in a series of All-Star matches, will be held July 12 in the Los Angeles Sport Arena, WTT President Larry King announced Tuesday.

Billie Jean King, John Newcombe and Evonne Goolagong are among those scheduled to compete in the match, which will be televised live from 11:30 p.m.-1:30 a.m. EDT on NBCTV.

CLEVELAND (AP) — The Cleveland Indians traded pitchers Jim Perry and Dick Bosman to the Oakland A's for pitcher John "Blue Moon" Odom and an unspecified amount of cash, the Tribe announced Tuesday.

Perry, 38, posted an ERA of 6.69 while going 1-6 with the Tribe in six starts and two relief appearances.

Bosman, 0-2, recorded an ERA of 4.08 so far this year while starting six times and relieving three times.

OAKLAND (AP) — Jack Evans, who guided the California Golden Seals' farm club in Salt Lake City to a title last year, has been named head coach of the Seals.

Bill McCreary, director of hockey operations for the Seals, announced the appointment of Evans Tuesday. McCreary took over the club last January when Marshall Johnston was fired.

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Arnold Palmer, a doubtful participant on the United States Ryder Cup team, has been selected captain of the 12-man squad, the Professional Golfers Associatin announced Tuesday.

But the golfing great said he still hasn't given up hope of also playing on the team, which will meet a British group at Laurel Valley in Ligonier, Pa., Sept. 19-21.

BUFFALO (AP) — The Buffalo Braves of the National Basketball Association have scheduled a news conference today to announce that Bob MacKinnon, coach of the Spirits of St. Louis in the American Basketball Association, will be their new director of player personnel.

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The University of Portland was voted into the West Coast Athletic Conference Tuesday, effective in the fall of 1976, replacing University of Nevada-Las Vegas.

The Pilots were picked on the first ballot with at least five schools under consideration. Las Vegas is turning independent at the end of this month.

In a five-hour meeting, the WCAC's Executive Committee decided to return to eight members after playing the 1975-76 year with only seven.

P.C. hopes for CIF bid

Pomona Catholic High's girls softball team wrapped up San Antonio League play Tuesday afternoon by defeating Garey High, 9-1.

P.C. finished the league season with a 6-2 record and ended up tied with Upland for second place in the standings. The Spartanettes are still hoping for a CIF playoff berth as a second-place team from the SAL.

Theresa Huss collected three hits in four trips to the plate for Pomona Catholic in its triumph over Garey. She also drove in one run and improved her batting average to .484.

Liz Rodriguez, the club's leading hitter with a .652 batting average, was the winning pitcher — giving up only six hits.

Girls' CIF playoff action begins Thursday, May 29.

Casper 3rd in winnings

NEW YORK (AP) — Billy Casper's victory Sunday in the New Orleans Open golf tournament gave him $63,518 for this season and a career total of $1,539,215, third best among all golfers.

But even with the $30,000 check, Casper was unable to make a dent in the top 10, which was unchanged except for Lee Trevino's rise from sixth to fifth with $96,772. Trevino tied for 14th in New Orleans.

Johnny Miller reamined No. 1 in money winnings with $155,233, followed by Jack Nicklaus and Tom Weiskopf.

Aussie KOs welter foe

Lee blanks A's

By The Assoc. Press

Boston's Bill Lee fired a twohitter and the Red Sox rode home runs by Jim Rice, Tony Conigliaro and Juan Beniquez to a 7-0 victory Tuesday night over the Oakland A's and their ace, Vida Blue.

Lee retired the first 13 batters before Sal Bando's fifth-inning double, then set down 11 batters in a row before Angel Mangual got a bad-hop single leading off the ninth.

The victory, his first shutout of the season, raised Lee's record to 5-4.

Blue, 8-2, was reached for six runs on eight hits—including the homers by Rice and Conigliaro—before being lifted in the fifth.

Elsewhere in the American League, New York blanked Kansas City 6-0, Detroit beat Minnesota 5-3 and Milwaukee trimmed Texas 7-6 in 10 innings. Baltimore's game at Chicago was rained out.

In the National League, Atlanta whipped Montreal 9-4, New York defeated Cincinnati 6-2, Houston beat Philadelphia 4-2, Chicago edged Los Angeles 2-1, San Diego beat St. Louis 5-2 and San Francisco whipped Pittsburgh 12-4.

New York's Pat Dobson scattered six singles. Roy White laced out a triple, double and two singles and Graig Nettles homered and tripled to highlight the Yankees attack.

Detroit scored all its runs in the sixth inning, with Dan Meyer's two-run triple and Bill Freehan's two-run double the big blows.

George Scott tripled home the tying run for Milwaukee, then scored on Mike Hegan's grounder to beat the Rangers in the 10th.

Vic Correll belted a grand slam homer and drove in five runs and Dusty Baker slammed a three-run homer to power the Braves past Montreal.

Joe Torre's two-run homer, his first as a New York Met, capped a four-run fifth inning that sank Cincinnati.

San Diego's Dave Winfield drove in three runs with a double and homer and the Padres' Alan Foster, a former Cardinal, posted his first victory over his former teammates.

LIFE BEGINS AT 500 — Three "senior citizens" of racing will lead the field in this year's Indianapolis 500. Three-time winner A.J. Foyt (R) will sit on the pole; 1973 winner Gordon Johncock (C) and 1968 winner Bobby Unser (L) complete the front row.

Indy recession easier

Auto racing

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Like everything else, the Indianapolis 500, the world's richest and perhaps most prestigious auto race, has been hit by the recession.

But thanks to people like Jim Gilmore, the Indy has been only gently tapped, not punched in the pocketbook like some other aspects of the auto industry.

The Indy, which has it's 59th running on Sunday, is the world's only million-dollar auto race. Some of that bundle is called accessory prize money which comes from a variety of commercial sponsors—tire manufacturers, gas and oil firms, auto parts companies and others.

Last year's accessory prizes amounted to $158,186. This year's, according to Speedway spokesmen, will probably drop to the $130,000 range, simply because some firms have found it unprofitable to continue participating in the classic and others have been forced to reduce their budgets for it. Among those who have dropped out this year are Firestone and STP, both synonomous with the Indy 500 for years.

It could have been a lot worse but for the presence of Gilmore and other such sportsmen.

The multi-faceted organization called Jim Gilmore Enterprises is in its third year as sponsor of A.J. Foyt Jr., the unquestioned king of championship auto racing, the pole-sitter in the lineup for Sunday's race and both the sentimental and gambling favorite to win an unprecedented fourth Indy.

"This is an old sport that needs new tools—dedication and intelligence — with which to survive. We have to get away from dollars and cents and get into promotion of auto racing, promotion in the best sense of the word," says the enthusiastic Gilmore.

Gilmore clearly has that sense. His empire includes an auto dealership in his hometown of Kalamazoo, Mich., television and radio stations, motels, real estate, farms and affiliations with a minor league hockey team and the Kalamazoo arena and convention center.

"What's happened," he says, "is that some of these big sponsors who have come into Indy and auto racing in the last few years have had no feeling for those guys back in the garages, living in motel rooms for a month. All they care about is dollars and cents and it's easy to give up racing when that's all you're interested in.

"I'd love the opportunity to explain the case of racing at Indy to some of these top-flight sponsors around the country," he adds. "Indy is the greatest sporting event and location in the world. Indianapolis is America!

"Auto racing is truly a part of me," Gilmore says, justifying why he continues to spend thousands of dollars in the sport while others cut back or cut out. "You will always be criticized for being part of something that costs a lot of money. But I can understand the dedication in auto racing and the feeling for it.

"If A.J. can win his fourth Indy, we'll take that back to our office. He's won the pole position for the fourth time already and that gives us great pride."

"Old" rookies will race

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Nearly every kid who ever sat behind a steering wheel at some time dreams of driving in the Indianapolis 500.

Bill Puterbaugh, Sheldon Kinser, Larry McCoy and Eldon Rasmussen will get that opportunity for the first time Sunday as part of the 33-car starting field for the 59th Indy classic.

Puterbaugh and Rasmussen are 38 years old, Kinser 32 and McCoy 20.

All have been involved in racing at some level for a number of years and have literally dreamed of driving the 2½-mile oval at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway since they began going round and round in motorcycles and cars.

"It's been my life," said Puterbaugh, who was the fastest qualifier of the four at 183.833 miles per hour. "I've been trying to get here since I've been in auto racing. But in the eight years I've been here as a driver, I've never really had the equipment to make this race until now.

"This car is the Eagle that Gordon Johncock drove to fourth place here last year and I knew right from the beginning I could get it in."

He'll be starting in 15th position, on the outside of the fifth three-car row, far ahead of his fellow first-year Indy performers. Kinser will be in 26th position, McCoy 28th and Rasmussen, who got into the field on the final day of time trials by bumping another rookie, Al Loquasto, will be in the middle of the last row.

The other three rookies say pretty much the same thing when asked how important Indy is to them, and all were longshots to make the race.

Puterbaugh was driving for a car owner who hadn't been at Indiaapolis in 11 years; Kinser had never driven on a paved track over five-eighths of a mile long and had never driven a rear-engine car until he arrived here two weeks ago; Rasmussen qualified a car which had crashed and been rebuilt four times in the past three years at Indy, and McCoy made it into the field with a Rasmussen-built car, driving far faster than he ever had gone here before.

Rasmussen and McCoy, both of whom filed suit against the Speedway and the U.S. Auto Club last May, claiming they were not given enough time to qualify before the field was closed, probably are the proudest at making it this year.

The suit still is pending, but things were peaceful as both fought to overcome reputations as poor drivers.

Rasmussen, from Indianapolis, qualified his own Rascar-Foyt at 181.910 m.p.h., giving the spectators in turn four a thrill as he wheeled through it on one of his four qualifying laps in a four-wheel slide.

McCoy, from Langhorne, Pa., was spurred into auto racing by his father, who bought him a car to drive. That automatically made him suspect among the other drivers. But he got the Rascar-Offenhauser into the field at 182.760 m.p.h. and made it look relatively easy.

Kinser, from Bloomington, Ind., surprised everyone by taking a Grant King-built car through the trials at 182.389 m.p.h., giving it a steady ride that had several veteran drivers nodding their heads in wonder.

Puterbaugh, also living in Indianapolis now, looks ahead with a bit of anxiety and plenty of enthusiasm to the thrill of starting in his first Indy.

"I'll come down the straightaway with the other guys, try to get low into the first corner and then get behind somebody who's going about the same pace," he said. "After I get the feel of the car and the tempo of the race, I'll do what needs to be done. Just like everybody else, I'm thinking what it would be like to win it.

"Hell, I wouldn't be here otherwise."

Los Al opens tonight

LOS ALAMITOS — Six evenly-matched sprinters are set to contest tonight's $12,000-added Inaugural Stakes as the 25th season of quarter horse racing gets underway at Los Alamitos Race Course.

The silver anniversary year, which runs for 79 nights through Aug. 20 and will offer horsemen more than $2.6 million in purses, kicks off with Timeto Thinkrich, Jet Set Three, Pass Over, Al's Alibi, Five Chics and Flight 109 all awaiting the start of the 350-yard dash that begins a stakes schedule that includes 33 of the top quarter horse events in the country.

Post time for the opening night program and every night of the 25th annual season will be 8 p.m. with a $2 Exacta on the first race and $5 Exactas on the sixth, eighth and ninth races.

Favoritism in the small but talented group of horses figures to fall to Timeto Thinkrich, who up until just a few weeks ago reigned as the industry's leading money earner. His $570,000 bank account now ranks second in the sport behind sensational 3-year-old Easy Date.

Timeto Thinkrich's last victory came here on January 17 when he posted a neck decision on Native Empress in the $10,000 Directors' Handicap. Since that time, he has suffered five straight defeats, including four in a row at Bay Meadows. His four setbacks at the northern California track, however, included three second-place finishes, the most recent a runner-up effort to Five Chics in the $15,000-added Peninsula Handicap. John Watson will be aboard Timeto Thinkrich in his bid to resume his winning ways.

Pass Over, the nation's top 3-year-old filly last year, will be making her first start since last February's $50,000 HQHRA Championship. The Pass 'Em Up mare will be making her first appearance under the guidance of national training champion and defending Los Alamitos titlist D. Wayne Lukas. A winner of $448,000, Pass Over's last triumph came last August in the $438,000 All American Derby. She drilled 350 yards in 18.3 seconds for her Inaugural start.

Jerry Nicodemus, perennial Southwest riding kingpin, will fly out to the West Coast to escort Pass Over on her trip to the Los Alamitos starting gate.

In addition to Pass Over, Lukas will also saddle the Robert Spreen entry of Flight 109 and Five Chics. Terry Lipham will do the riding chores on Flight 109 while Robert Adair has the call on Five Chics.

Flight 109 has been idle for the past two months since running fifth under 125 pounds behind Elan Again in the $10,000 Bart Express at Bay Meadows. The Bayou Bar gelding, a winner of 10 stakes races during his Los Alamitos career, established a 300-yard track record of 15.41 seconds (since erases by I'm Kipty) in winning the Firecracker Express here last summer. His last local start was in the $50,000 HQHRA Championship and he finsihed a narrow nose behind Elan Again for top honors in that race.

Beef prices heading up

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

The higher livestock prices that helped cause the latest boost in the Wholesale Price Index are likely to mean more expensive hot dogs, hamburgers and steaks for summer barbecues. But no one really knows whether the increase will continue, how much of it will show up at the supermarket or what the consumer will do.

On March 5, a 600-pound, choice steer carcass was selling for $56.75 per 100 pounds. On May 6, the same carcass brought $79.50, a 40 per cent increase.

Agriculture Department figures showed that prices paid to farmers increased 4 per cent from March 15 to April 15 after five straight months of decline.

The Labor Department said last week that this increase helped push up the Wholesale Price Index by 1.5 per cent in April. It was the first boost since November.

Why the sharp rise in cattle prices? What's going to happen at the supermarket?

The rise in cattle prices is due mainly to a decline in the over-all meat supply.

"Prices are going up primarily because of the low number of cattle available for slaughter now," said a Department of Agriculture economist in Des Moines, Iowa.

"The sitution has been so unfavorable for feeders (feedlot operators who fatten livestock on grain) that some have just discontinued their feed operations. Feed costs are high ... and prices they get for meat are low."

The American Meat Institute reported that although beef production so far this year is 5 per cent ahead of 1974, decreases in pork and poultry production mean that 2 per cent less meat of all kinds has been produced in 1975 than a year earlier.

Howard Madsen, an institute economist, also said that some cattlemen had been holding back their animals, waiting for the implementation of new beef grading standards. Those standards had been scheduled to take effect April 14, but were delayed by an injunction.

Madsen said that the arrival of spring means farmers can put their cattle out to pasture and wait for the price to go up instead of sending them to market.

The other part of the price picture is demand. Consumers have shown resistance to high meat prices, particularly since the boycott of 1973. Surveys show many Americans say they are trying to eat less meat to save money. If people won't buy, the price may come down.

That already has happened in the live cattle market where prices declined Wednesday because of resistance from the packers who were afraid they couldn't increase their prices any more and therefore didn't want to pay more for steers they slaughter.

Retail meat sales this year have been fairly good, however, according to Madsen. Americans traditionally eat more beef in the summer than at any other time and they may be willing to pay the price for red meat.

Supermarket prices for beef already have been rising. The American National Cattlemen's Association reported recently that its survey of 19 cities showed retail prices of five representative cuts of beef went up seven cents or 5.5 per cent in April, rising from an average of $1.27 to $1.34.

One retailer said the increases of 20 cents a pound and more in carcass prices in recent months could translate into even greater boosts of 30 and 40 cents for the consumer because of waste on the carcass. (It takes 1.4 pounds of carcass to get one pound of meat for retail sale; items such as bone and fat are sold for use in manufacturing.)

There is a bright side for the consumer, however. Supermarkets — already the target of criticism because retail prices did not decline when farm prices went down — may be reluctant to boost the cost of meat. They could take a loss on meat and make it up on other items.

Grain prices are declining. The American Meat Institute's Madsen said prices have dropped 15 to 20 per cent since Jan. 1.

The beef is available, even if it isn't coming to market. Sooner or later, supplies will increase again.

The Agriculture Department said Thursday that it expected retail prices to rise 6 to 8 per cent this year, compared to a boost of almost 15 per cent in 1974. But the department said this prediction depended on farmers getting harvests as large as they expect. If bad weather reduces harvests, as it did last year, food prices might go up 8 to 10 per cent in 1975, the department said.

Air bags are proving worth

NORTHBROOK, Ill. (BW) — Air bags are far superior to seat belts and shoulder harnesses in saving lives and preventing serious injuries in small cars, according to results of crash tests reported by Allstate Insurance Co.

A full report on these results is being presented in hearings by the Department of Transportation (DOT) which began in Washington, D.C., on whether air bags should be standard equipment in all new automobiles, large and small.

Tests conducted by Allstate produced a direct comparison between belt systems and air bags by installing both in the same test vehicle — a sled accelerator with a compact car frame.

The driver's side of the compact car passenger compartment was equipped with an air bag. There were no belts whatsoever for the dummy driver in these tests because the current federal standard under discussion requires a completely passive protection device.

The dummy front seat passenger was strapped in his seat with a standard lap and shoulder restraint system from a 1975 compact car purchased from a dealer.

In the first test, at 29.6 miles an hour (equivalent to hitting a parked car at 59.2 mph), the upper anchorage of the shoulder belt ruptured, causing the passenger to whip forward and hit head against the instrumental panel with a head injury criteria (HIC) of 1,055. According to government test criteria, any HIC above 1,000 would be fatal.

In the second test, at 43.6 mph, equivalent to hitting a bridge abutment at that speed or a parked car at 87.2 mph, the passenger's shoulder belt itself broke and he was "killed," government criteria indicated. This HIC was 1,470.

The driver who had an air bag and knee impact padding "survived" and had no serious injury in either the 29.6 m.p.h. or 43.6 m.p.h. crashes, according to government test criteria. The driver's HIC at the lower speed was 383 and at the higher speed was 437.

Allstate says results such as in these tests should in no way be construed to mean that belts in present cars should not be used by drivers and their passengers.

"The belted passenger or driver in crash situations is always better off than someone not using belts," said Allstate's automotive engineering director, Jack E. Martens.

"The point made in these tests is that standard belts, which have very low voluntary usage by the public, do have serious limits to their protection capabilities even when used.

"This is especially true in high-speed crashes where passive protection systems such as air bags have their highest performance potential and in small cars where belts are not as effective as in larger cars," he said.

Modern living

Two kitchens for every home?

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

New life styles are emerging as some older folk move in with their married children, married sisters share houses and young married people live in smaller homes in the interest of economy.

"The trends have bolstered the compact kitchen market," explained Michael Spielman, president of the business established 45 years ago by his late father, Sydney, a pioneer in the concept of compact kitchens.

Apparently the two-family idea works fine "until two housewives get into one kitchen. I've been told," says Spielman. "It is one reason the smaller extra unit is installed."

They've been finding doubling up works very well, he says.

Spielman says that many young married people have a different conception of kitchens from their parents. They need less space because they usually acquire only those items that fulfill their needs, and most of them are short-order cooks, if they cook at all.

"I visited one married working couple who had our compact kitchen and I was amazed: the appliances looked as if they had never been used. And that was the reason — they atee out almost all the time."

In the early days of their development, compact units were used mainly in offices, dens and recreation rooms, but even then the 30-inch unit that included sink and range with refrigerator below was considered a popular serviceable unit in one-room studio apartments.

In recent years his company has concentrated on three-and-a-half foot and four-and-a-half-foot kitchen installations that have all the necessary components of a kitchen. Smaller kitchens are being designed for newer houses ($30,000-bracket) where the living room is being made smaller in the interest of a larger family room, Spielman says.

"Builders are trying to save inches by determining what is needed and building the house around that idea," he says. Many of these houses are occupied by young people.

The compact kitchen is also solving a problem in motels, he insists. He has planned about 15 where restaurants are needed. In eliminating one bathroom, they can install a five-foot kitchen that can be used for breakfast, lunch or dinner and operated by one man. It includes freezer, compactor, coffeemaker and microwave oven.

"Formerly motels didn't want to get involved with food, but now it may cost them business if they do not because meals in restaurants have become so expensive. I'm told that a motel with 30 rooms or less cannot operate a restaurant economically. But with a fast-food operation and low-cost freezer meals the problem can be solved.

Along those lines Spielman has teamed up with a large meat packer-food processor who is trying to package a good, frozen, home-cooked meal for $3. The success or failure of that phase of the operation hinges on the meal's goodness, he says.

"It may even prove to be a boon to single people who now eat out to save time and energy. A good frozen meal would be economical and a time-saver."

In 1980, kitchen appliances will change anyway because of government regulations, Spielman says. In the refrigerator, fuel savings must be achieved either by doubling the amount of insulation which will make storage space smaller or by eliminating the frost-free item. Either one will reduce the energy consumed.

Higher soybean yield with bees

CHICAGO (AP) — A University of Wisconsin scientist is conducting experiments to interest honeybees in pollinating soybean crops, and the result could be inexpensive hybrid soybeans to help feed the world.

Prairie Farmer, a rural magazine, reports that Eric Erickson has been conducting bee pollination tests in caged soybean plots. Honeybees were thought to have little benefit for soybeans, a self-pollinated crop. But Erickson's studies are showing that bees can increase soybean yields by as much as 16 per cent.

He is now screening several hundred varieties and breeding lines of soybeans for their attractiveness to honeybees. Bees could help make hybrid soybeans a reality someday. Without bees, hybridization requires tedious, expensive and timeconsuming hand pollination.

Prairie Farmer is a Leisure Group I publication of American Broadcasting Companies, Inc.

Pots de creme au chocolat

Pots de creme au chocolat is an elegant custard cream originating in France.

This luscious chocolate treate usually is served in small pot de creme cups with covers or demitasse cups.

Originally pot de creme was a very complex recipe of blended egg yolks, heavy cream and vanilla or orange flower water. Several years later, the chocolate version was invented.

Now with the aid of a blender and semi-sweet real chocolate morsels, the new simplified version of pot de creme au chocolate can be made in minutes with very little work required. Excellent as gifts or party favors, this gourmet delight, with its fine flavor and texture, becomes a grand finale for any occasion.

ELEGANT AND EASY POTS DE CREME

- 1 6-oz. pkg. (1 cup) semi-sweet chocolate bits
- ½ of 11½-oz. pkg. (1 cup) milk chocolate morsels
- ½ cup sugar
- 3 eggs
- 1 cup hot milk

In blender combine semi-sweet real chocolate morsels, milk chocolate morsels, sugar and eggs. Pour in hot milk and blend on medium speed until mixture is smooth. Pour into pots de creme or demitasse cups and chill several hours. Garnish with whipped cream, if desired.

Always keep under refrigeration until ready to serve. Makes 8 4-oz. servings.

Victory gardening

Birds worth weight in bugs

By ALLAN A. SWENSON
(tenth in a series)

Sooner or later you'll reach a confrontation with an army of insects.

Organic gardeners have believed for years that they could control insects naturally, using biological and mechanical methods. There's a good bith of truth to that.

INFLATION FIGHTER'S VICTORY GARDEN

Birds are helpful allies. They can devour millions of harmful insects in a season. The ones to encourage are those that flit around the hedges, fly low over gardens, and hop through vegetable rows.

One simple way to make friends with birds is to put in a bird bath. Make sure you keep it filled with fresh, clean water. Drinking water is also important. You would be surprised how scarce drinking water can be for birds, especially in dry periods.

Many birds have mixed appetites, eating seeds as well as insects. Cultivate their friendship with a bird feeder. There's far less damage from birds than you may expect. Birds seem to prefer the sour, acid, or bitter fruits. But in the case of blueberries, currents, cherries, and possibly strawberries, you may have to use netting to keep out unwanted birds.

Beneficial insects — praying mantises, ladybugs, and others — can be put to work in several ways. However, once you start using insecticides, you nullify them. In fact, you kill them, along with the destructive insects.

Frogs, toads, and snakes are also part of nature's plan to achieve proper balance in plant and insect population. Frogs need moist areas, but toads do well under many conditions. Both devour hundreds of insects.

Snakes are rodent catchers. Obviously, nobody wants a den of poisonous snakes around, but garter snakes, grass snakes and others do perform valuable services, if you can stand them.

Naturally-derived insecticides also work well. So do some flowers that repel insects. Then there's good old hand-picking of beetles and bugs. Elimination of weeds also helps, since that deprives many insects of their initial host crops before they invade your garden.

Funny thing — insects prefer diseased or unhealthy plants. By regular use of balanced fertilizer, cultivation or mulching to control weeds, you have taken the first steps in thwarting insects that would damage your garden.

Finally, you have an arsenal of highly effective pesticides to mobilize against harmful insects. Use insecticides only when they are really needed. A little — repeat, little — goes a long way.

The political arena

Lloyd's 'Congressmobile' to hit road

REP. JIM LLOYD, D-35th Dist., will put his "Congresssionmobile" on the road May 30 when he travels to Chino, Lytle Creek and Mt. Baldy.

He recently leased the motorcoach to drive to out-lying areas to better serve the residents.

"Persons with problems with federal agencies or who just want to say hellow or tell me how they feel on national issues facing Congress are invited to stop by," said Lloyd.

Lloyd will welcome Chino officials and residents at 8:30 a.m. at the City Hall. This will be followed by a tour of the 18-foot mobile office.

At 1 p.m., he will park the mobile office in front of Happy Jack's General Store in Lytle Creek. Then at 4 p.m., he will greet Mt. Baldy residents at the U.S. Forest Service's ranger station on San Antonio Canyon Road.

Lloyd said his first outing is designed to demonstrate his aims of bringing government close to all residents within his district.

A regular schedule of visits to various communities will be maintained by his staff while Lloyd is in Washington.

STATE CONTROLLER KENNETH CORY will be speaker at the West End Democratic Club's "Stars and Stripes Gala" June 6 at Griswold's Restaurant in Claremont. He will discuss current issues in California.

Before being elected as controller, Cory served four terms in the state Assembly. He represented a portion of Orange County.

ASSEMBLYMAN BILL McVITTIE, D-65th Dist., has had his bill that would prohibit a savings and loan association from making loans to its officers, directors, major stockholders and employes passed from the Assembly Finance, Insurance and Commerce Committee to the full Assembly for formal debate.

"The current law is nothing less that an invitation to bad business practices," he declared. "We've seen too many savings and loans get into trouble because their officers could not resist the temptations presented by a weak and unhealthy law. My bill removes such temptations."

The measure, AB 2152, also includes provisions that protect the rights of dissenting minority stockholders when a merger is affected.

Another measure co-authored by McVittie, giving the state a role in encouraging good nutrition for California residents, has won Assembly approval.

It establishes the Interdepartmental Office of Food and Nutrition to assit the governor in setting nutrition policy, establishing and coordinating nutrition activities and providing training to institutions and service organizations.

Small business training class

Irwin Sugarman of Hacienda Heights will teach a La Puente Community Adult School course in small business management starting June 16.

It will meet Mondays and Wednesdays from 6:45 to 10:15 p.m. in Room B-7 at Wilson High School in Hacienda Heights.

The six-week course will cover marketing, finances, raising capital, budgets, forecasts, accounting and tax savings and liabilities as related to business.

Also included will be a workshop for planning new businesses and another for programming a 12-month operation.

The course is structed for those planning to go into business and those already in business doing from $50,000 to $1 million in volume.

Sugarman has his own management consultant practice as a controller to small businesses. He has spent 20 years in Southern California working with small businesses in all phases of management.

WHAT'S IN STORE . . .

SERVICE IS OUR TRADITION

It's been 75 years since Albert Gerrard, one of the founders of Alpha Beta, opened his first meat market in Pomona. There, every customer was offered the epitome of service with a full guarantee on all the meat sold. Seats were provided so the shopper could watch while every cut of meat was prepared according to the individual's special instructions. Of course, the wait might be awhile, but during that time local news was exchanged and helpful cooking hints could be provided by the butcher.

Today busy shoppers usually don't have time to have their meat custom cut or ground. Since self-service meats became popular in the fifties, most prefer to select their own packages. It's much faster and easier to pick out the size and cut to fit the family and budget needs.

After these 75 years things have changed at Alpha Beta, but many traditions remain. All the food sold at Alpha Beta still carries a money-back guarantee if you are not completely satisfied. And, after these 75 years, Alpha Beta still offers service to the customer when it's needed. Just ask your butcher in the red apron or your store manager in the blue jacket if there are questions about any product or if you have special requests. They'll try to help you.

Maybe you'd like to have our home economist, Sue Getts, help you with recipes or meal planning? We'd like to hear from you.

We hope you'll help us celebrate our anniversary. Come visit us during our Diamond Jubilee!

Speech class for problem kids

Euclid School of the Ontario-Montclair School District will offer a special speech and language class for 3 to 5-year-olds with language difficulty during the first summer term June 18-July 22.

Becky Roberts and Paula Sukowske, speech and hearing specialists, will operate the program with two classes per day: 8-10 a.m., and 10:30 a.m.-12:30 p.m. Each class will contain no more than 16 children.

"The program can really be a great help to kids with possible language difficulties," reports Miss Roberts. "Mormally, a child with language problems will get behind in school right away before anyone can recognize the problem. Even then, after help is being given, the child has to play catch-up for a long time. We can prevent that from happening by helping him before he gets to regular school."

Miss Roberts said that parents of 3 to 5-year-old children who may have a language problem should contact Euclid School and leave their names and phone numbers with the secretary. Program sponsors will call the parent and arrange an appointment.

Each child will be examined thoroughly, said Miss Roberts, and if a problem is discovered, the child will be admitted to the program, and may be assigned to a specialist for the regular school year.

She stressed that language difficulties can be overcome much more easily if discovered at an early age.

TV study at MSAC

Two televised college courses will be offered for credit this summer by Mt. San Antonio College.

"History of Art" covers architecture, sculpture, painting and minor art representative of prehistoric and early times.

"Introduction of Physical Geography" will deal with basic climate, landforms, surface waters, soils and vegetation.

Each course offers three units of credit. Those who are interested may register until June 20 at the MSAC office of instructional television.

The planet with the longest period of rotation is Venus, which spins on its axis once every 243.16 days, so its "day" is longer than its "year" — 224.7007 days.

Sculpted potato salad spices up the table

There is more to a potato salad than the potato.

It is a salad that has inspired creative cooks to mix and mate all kinds of innovative combinations. Here is a great tasting potato salad ring perfect for such stellar occasions as the first picnic of the season.

Secret to this sumptuous salad is in the instant onion soup mix which is used as a major flavoring ingredient. Its lively taste acts as a delicious counterpoint to other salad components.

The recipe calls for a mix of interesting flavors: sliced potatoes, salami, shredded Swiss cheese, hard cooked eggs and the crunchy texture of diced celery.

Ingredients are blended together in a spirited mixture of mayonnaise, instant onion soup mix, vinegar, sugar and pepper. It is packed into a ring mold to chill, which means it is the perfect salad to make ahead in the morning and then leave in the refrigerator until time to serve.

Its unusual flavor is provided by a versatile instant onion soup mix that comes as one serving. You'll find this particular instant soup mix a great boon this summer for adding tantalizing flavor to everything from hamburger to barbecue sauces. It's also handy for those occasional cool rainy days when a quick cup of hot soup is so welcome.

PICNIC POTATO SALAD

2 envelopes onion soup mix
¾ cup mayonnaise
2 tablespoons white vinegar
1 tablespoon sugar
¼ teaspoon pepper
4 cups sliced cooked potatoes (about 6 medium)
½ pound salami, cut into ½-inch cubes
½ pound Swiss cheese, shredded
4 hard-cooked eggs, chopped
½ cup diced celery

In large bowl, blend instant onion soup with mayonnaise, vinegar, sugar, and pepper. Add potatoes, salami, cheese, eggs and celery; mix well. Lightly grease a 6-cup ring mold; pack in salad and chill about 3 hours.

With knife, loosen salad from sides of mold and unmold onto serving platter.

Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Have South Seas ribs for your own luau

Do you dread the hassle and hustle of loading up the car and heading out early in hopes of finding a patch of green on which to have your Memorial Day picnic?

Still, it is a holiday and franks and burgers on the backyard grill just doesn't make it . . .

How about an exotic luau right in your own backyard? Two new recipes add up to a patio perfect luau.

South Seas Ribs are easy on the outdoor chef because most of the cooking is done ahead of time indoors. Ribs can be precooked the day before or in the morning. Finishing touches are added on the backyard grill where a succulent glaze of marmalade and an envelope of chili seasoning mix is brushed on.

Lanai Salad Bowl is the perfect complement to zesty ribs. Just toss together lettuce and pineapple with a tangy mustard dressing.

Crusty rolls, fresh strawberry sundaes and iced tea or lemonade complete the menu.

LANAI SALAD BOWL

2 tablespoons sugar
2 tablespoons oil
2 tablespoons French's Prepared Yellow Mustard
1 can (20-oz.) pineapple chunks
2 cups torn-up lettuce
1 green pepper, chopped

Combine sugar, oil, and mustard; add 2 tablespoons syrup or juice from can of pineapple. Combine pineapple with the lettuce and pepper in salad bowl. Add mustard dressing and toss lightly. 4 to 6 servings.

SOUTH SEAS RIBS

3 to 4 pounds spareribs
¼ cup orange marmalade
¼ cup lemon juice
1 envelope (1¾-oz.) French's Chili-O Mix

Arrange ribs in single layer on rack in shallow pan or on broiler pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 1½ hours; pour off fat. Stir together marmalade, lemon juice, and contents of chili-o mix envelope; brush over ribs. Broil or grill 10 to 15 minutes, until crisp and brown.

Clothes buying tips to aid the budget

By JOHN DORFMAN

The average American spends nearly $300 a year on clothing.

Is the money well spent?

Not always. In the never ending war between restraint and impulse, the frequent victor is impulse. Too often, consumers pay for merchandise of poor quality. And sometimes money spent on clothing simply disappears down the drain — of the washing machine.

One thing you've probably noticed from reading labels in stores is that very few garments are made of 100 per cent anything these days. That doesn't mean a basic knowledge of fibers isn't helpful.

But it does explain why consumers were somewhat at a loss as to how to care for garments wisely, in the absence of specific care instructions. Now, thanks to permanent care labels, those instructions are available. So, unless you have a taste for throwing money away, read the care labels and follow their suggestions.

Immediate and effective stain removal is important for clothing care. Some stains will dissolve in water but not in cleaning fluid, others in cleaning fluid but not in water. For instance, sugar dissolves in water but is totally unaffected by cleaning fluid. Tar dissolves in cleaning fluid but is unaffected by water, according to the International Fabricare Institute. Some stains, like lipstick, are complex and need both water and cleaning fluid to dissolve them.

When you're coming to the rescue of a stained garment in distress time is of the essence. A stain that goes untreated can become permanent — especially if it gets exposed to heat (as in a dryer).

Another way of saving on clothes that deserves some discussion is making a careful selection, so you won't be stuck with a garment that you really don't want to wear very often. If you are weak in this area, have a friend or spouse join you in shopping for clothes. A second opinion may help you look good and feel at home. Then try to coordinate your wardrobe around those colors.

Whether you're buying for a child, man or woman, certain signs will help you recognize good workmanship in clothes. Where the fabric is decorated with a pattern, that pattern should be continuous even where the garment isn't. With a sports jacket, for example, buttoning the center butoon should be analogous to completing a jigsaw puzzle — the pattern should fit together perfectly. Pockets should be full and sturdy. Hems on dresses should be neatly stitched, with enough material provided for lengthening as required. Seams on sleeves should be single, not double, and should run along the inside of the arm.

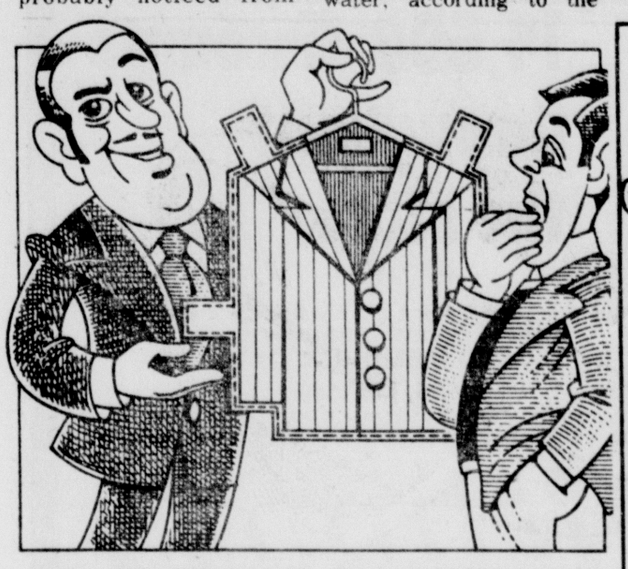
Perhaps the most important indicator of workmanship is the appearance of the seams. They should be completely and evenly sewn, not loose or ragged. There should be an adequate amount of material inside the garment at most seams so that the garment can be let out if the buyer needs a little bit of extra room.

Shoes are a vital part of everyone's wardrobe, both financially and in terms of health. You may think you can't afford to spend the time, money and effort necessary to find the right shoes. But you really can't afford not to. The wrong shoes can cause serious damage to your feet.

It takes about 20 years for a foot to develop completely, with all of its 26 bones in the right places. That's why parents should be very careful about the shoes — and the socks — their children wear. The wrong shoes can deform a child's foot for life. Socks that are too small are almost as harmful.

When you go to buy shoes for yourself or for a child, you can save yourself a lot of woe by looking at the old ones in the closet. Watch for certain telltale signs. Look first at the inside, in the toe area. If the lining is rubbed and chafed, it's a sign the shoe was too small. If it's rubbed just above the toe line, that's even worse — it means the shoe was much too short and the wearer's toes curled up in an effort to take up less room. If seams are broken, that's another indication a shoe was too short. On the other hand, if a shoe's toes are noticeably curled up, that's a sign the shoe was too long.

Learning from your old shoes is all the more important because many shoe salespeople don't have extensive training. With the growing emphasis on high-volume sales, some shoe stores and departments are very nearly in the self-service category.



Consumerism

By JOHN DORFMAN
(Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

How do you turn theories of good nutrition into a reality without tearing your pocket-book to shreds? A few key techniques of supermarket strategy are:

—Use store brands.
—Buy in large quantities.
—Go after true bargains.
—Read the labels.
—Check unit prices.

Store brands aren't always cheaper than "name" brands of canned or frozen goods, but they usually are. They may taste just as good as better-known brands; the only way to know is to try. the savings can be considerable.

Next, consider increasing the quantities in which you purchase your food. A lot of items are cheaper if purchased by the dozen, keg, sack, barrel or box instead of one portion at a time. Buy large cans, if you can possibly use them. Go after true bargains and resist the siren lures of the store's display and packaging practices. Do shop the ads and pay attention to sales. The store may take a loss on an advertised item to bring you in. But the items displayed most alluringly once you're there are probably those on which they have the fattest markup. For bargains, reach up or down or look in the corners.

Read the labels. This may seem like an obvious or even insulting injunction. But the fact is too many shoppers don't. And even people who do read labels don't always know how to take full advantage of what's printed there. Take a can or package of "mushroom soup." A lot of people assume that the law requires one of its main ingredients to be mushrooms. That's not so, although the laws are moving in that direction and maybe we'll get there some day. For the time being, it's possible to pick up a package of mushroom soup like the one we encountered recently. It sold for $2.99 a pound, a little arithmetic told us. And on the side of the box, the ingredients were listed. Spray-dried vegetable fat came first. That's made up of quite a batch of things — vegetable fat, corn syrup solids, sodium caseinate, mono-and diglycerides, dipotassium phosphate, sodium silico aluminate and artificial flavor and color. After that came 10 more ingredients, including salt and vegetable gum. Then, way down at the bottom, were dehydrated mushrooms and caramel color.

What some people don't realize is that manufacturers are required to list ingredients in descending order, according to the weights of each ingredient contained in the product. What you see first is what you get most of. So a more accurate name for the mixture described above would have been not mushroom soup but spray-dried vegetable fat soup.

Reading labels not only tells you the ingredients in order of weight, it also gives you nutritional information. Under rules promulgated by the Food and Drug Administration, any food processor or packager that makes nutritional claims or that adds nutrients to a product must provide nutritional information on the product's label.

This information follows a standard format. First comes the size of one serving or portion. Then, the number of portions in the container. After that come the number of calories per portion; then the amount of protein, carbohydrate and fat in each portion expressed in grams. (It doesn't really matter if you're unfamiliar with metric measurements. The point of the information is really to let you compare the proportions of the nutrients in the product and to let you compare one brand's nutritional merits against another's.)

Following that basic information, the label will give the product's percentage of the United States recommended daily allowance (RDA) of various vitamins and minerals. The RDA — ser by the National Academy of Sciences — is the daily intake of each nutrient that is believed to be desirable for from 95 to 99 per cent of the population.

The label must tell you what percentage of this recommended level the product in question will provide for each of eight nutrients: protein, vitamin A, vitamin C, thiamin, riboflavin, niacin, calcium and iron. If, for example, the label says "riboflavin . . . 10," that means one serving of the product provides 10 per cent of the riboflavin you need for the day.

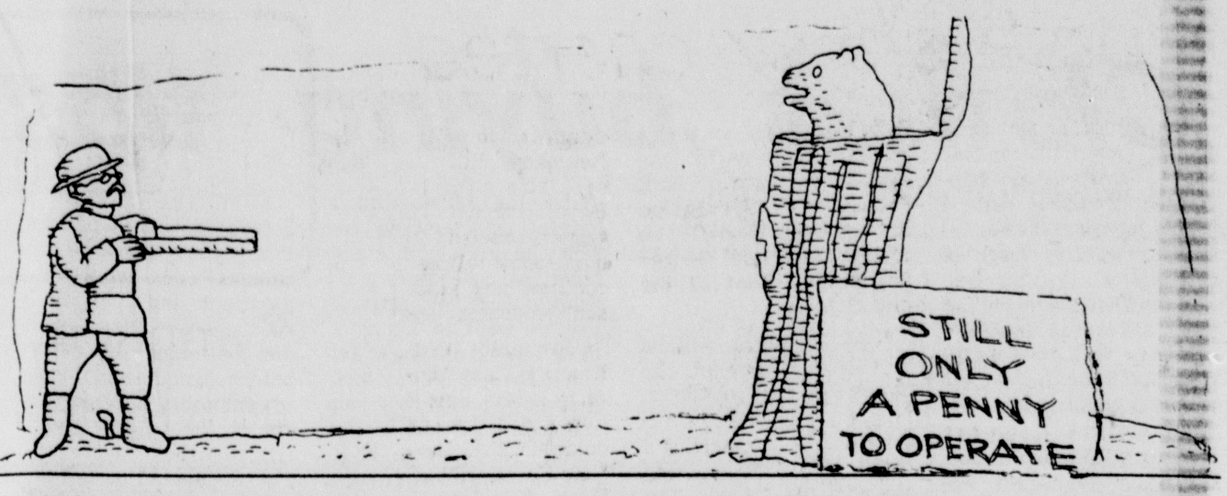
Antiques—no recession



WICHITA, KANS. — (NEA) — Talk of recession, economic slumps and the '30s revisited have very little relation to the antiques business.

That's because the antiques trade is somewhat separate from the economic mainstream, explained Stella Hall, Clifton, N.J., editor of "The Antiques Dealer," a monthly publication for dealers.

For this reason the recession has had little effect, for example, on the fine antiques market. According to "Antique Monthly," a publication for collectors and dealers, antique dealers on both sides of the Atlantic in the past year report prices for great objects have reached unprecedented heights. However, Americans seem to be collecting more European objects than vice versa. In 1974, for antique objects alone, exclusive of paintings, prints, drawings and sculpture, U.S. Department of Commerce export figures totaled more than $24 million. In contrast imports for the same period for all antiques totalled nearly $96 million. "Antique Monthly" also reports that European interest in American folk art is growing and that fine antique American furniture is growing scarce. Prices have soared, therefore, as the furniture especially is siphoned off by American museums, leaving little for the private collector.

Even with the dramatic rise in prices for all collectibles, Stella Hall pointed out that this doesn't mean that present economic conditions will not have an effect on dealers. "In the past 10 years or so, the antiques business had done so well that some dealers have gotten comfortable . . . they haven't had to push or sutdy. They've been lucky. Now, instead of watching antiques sell themselves, they will have to know more about promotion, advertising and merchandising."

Dealers are being encouraged to be flexible and open to change, she said. "This is the time to reevaluate their business attitudes, perhaps exert some efforts in new directions."

Then, too, she continued, many dealers feel that this is the time to stock finer quality items which will more closely hold their value.

"The cadillac class of antiques and collectibles will always hold their value, even in times of widespread economic stress," said Don Taylor, Wichita, Kan., dealer, appraiser and educator. "The basic trend of knowledgeable collectors is toward the finer items.

"The world 'collecting' covers a multitude of 'sins' from barbed wire to art glass. We're in the throes of the greatest collecting period ever seen. Even jobless collectors will not cease to be collectors. Once they are back on thier feet financially, they'll be buying again," he said.

"In our own locality, we are having more antique shows," he said, and explained that this is the route many dealers have chosen to promote their shops and acquire new merchandise. He believes that the increase in shows has resulted in a dissipation of quality and effectiveness.

"I don't see much evidence that collectors are cutting back on purchases or cashing in any of their investment objects," he said. To the collector who wants to sell a few pieces, he had this advice. "If you don't panic you won't take a loss. Choose carefully the right time and place to dispose of your pieces."

How do collectors feel about the economic outlook in relation to their collectinos? Of all the collectors we've talked with, one we'll call Carol was a barometer of their opinions.

Until recently Carol's four-member family operated on two incomes and although that has been cut in half she reports that, "We're still buying. I'm just fool enough that whatever nickels I get ahold of I'll use to collect." She admits that it helps to have a marriage partner who is equally committed as a collector.

"I suppose it's better to eat groceries than post cards but there is nothing sensible about collecting. It's almost as bad as a religious mania."

Call it a mania or a hobby, fanaticism or commitment — whatever it is, it is an important factor that separates the antiques trade from the cash-and-credit slump of today's economic mainstream.

MADRID (AP) — The news agency Cifra says 28 persons have been killed by the Basque guerrilla organization E.T.A. since it began in 1960. The largest attack was a bomb blast that killed 14 persons in a Madrid cafeteria last September.

The second annual Casa Colina Benefit Amateur Horse Show, to aid handicapped children, will be held Saturday at the Carnation Ring, Los Angeles County Fairgrounds, Pomona. The show is being sponsored by the hospital's Auxiliary and the Pacific Coast Walking Horse Association to support the Casa Colina Hospital Children's Developmental Services, located on hospital grounds.

They range in age from 12 months to 10 years, and come from many communities in the greater Pomona Valley area. According to Elizabeth Neumann, Ph.D. director of the Children's Developmental Services Center, proceeds from the horse show will be used to continue and expand present programs.

Showgirl's job

Role is changing

By ROD ANGOVE
Associated Press Writer

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Two decades ago a showgirl's job in a hotel-casino here often meant she had to be in the lounges between shows to flirt with customers.

Most had to live in the hotels, available at any hour for parties.

But today most dancers are married and are career and family oriented.

Even though they all love the applause, it is a minority these days that fraternizes with customers after a show.

"It used to be like a party around here...habits change," says Burton Cohen, manager of the Thunderbird Hotel, wrying adding, "Now most men bring their wives when they come here."

Said Tricia Lee, principal topless dancer at the MGM Grand's revue: "We wouldn't live in the hotel. My friends and I don't have any association with the customers.

"We're professionals," the married, Australian-born dancer added.

"I've danced almost 10 years, including five at the Lido in Paris. I plan one more show— each show lasts four years— and then I'm going to settle down and raise a family."

Meantime, she is taking a variety of dancing lessons twice a week to keep out of a rut. Her next show may require a different style.

Another MGM dancer, Patrice Chanel, formerly of Los Angeles and also 24, is married, with a 3-year-old daughter, Jolie.

"I get to bed about 4:30 a.m., and I get up to send my daughter to school," she said. "I'm in a constant state of being tired."

But she likes her job: "The high point of the pirate act is when I'm perched on a guy's shoulder and behind us, a whole ship comes forward and the people in the front rows don't know where it's going to stop.

Crackdown on flights from Mexico

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Pilots of light planes flying from Mexico may be in for a tougher time because of a crackdown on narcotics hauling.

The U.S. Customs Service is proposing that all pilots headed into the United States must notify Customs or the Federal Aviation Administration at least 15 minutes before crossing the border.

The pilots would be directed to land at one of 13 designated airports where around-the-clock inspections would be made.

Among the airports are Calexico in the Imperial Valley and in the San Diego area Lindbergh and Brown fields.

Asking for love

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: My father is such a hypocrite and a phony that I'm growing to dislike him more each year as I really see how he works. He's very stingy with my brother, my mother and me, and yet whenever we're out with other people, for dinner, or even in a department store, he's so generous we all almost faint. My mother told me in confidence that he insists on paying the bills when other men and their wives are along, but he won't give any of his own family enough money to buy even the smallest items. Okay, I think I could learn to tolerate his cheapness at home, and perhaps even excuse his idea of "belt-tigtening" because of the current economy, but I can't stand the big switch when someone else is around to observe. —M.B.

Dear M.B.: Don't spend too much time being angry with your father becuase that won't really help you or him. Try to analyze why he behaves as he does and you may become a bit more sympathetic and tolerant of his shortcomings.

It sounds to me as if he may feel inferior and insecure with anyone outside of his immediate family. He may think no one would like or respect him unless he picked up the check. Of course this is foolish, because no one should be valued only for the amount of money he's willing to spend. True respect and friendship can't be purchased. Usually, only the person who suffers from very low self-esteem needs to use money in this manner.

Your father probably feels that his family will stand by him even though they may be aware of his faults, the real ones and those he may imagine he has. Psychologists Robert Steven Baron, Gard Roper and Penny Baron tested subjects on private and public generosity. Though they expected people to be more generous and pledge more money for contributions to a worthy cause in public than they would in private, much to their surprise, their studies showed the opposite to be true. The women they tested tended to be somewhat more generous when they were giving as individuals than they were when they became part of a group pledging money. This would suggest that the individuals tested, unlike your father, were secure enough not to feel they had to impress others with their generosity.

Because money means security, love and power to so many people, it's small wonder that it produces so many conflicting emotions. Your father may have felt deprived in his childhood, economically, or perhaps emotionally. Sometimes, children who have all the material advantages grow up with serious problems about money because they were deprived of affection and tenderness. Almost all serious neuroses involving money can be traced back to childhood experiences.

It may be hard for you to realize but your father may really be asking for more love and acceptance from friends he feels would reject him if they accepted his own evaluation of himself. Using money to express insecurity and devaluation of self is not uncommon. If you're close enough to your father to be able to talk with him about his real emotions and fears, you might be able to help him and yourself as well.

Press coarsely ground black pepper and finely chopped almonds over surface of ground beef patties. Broil or barbecue.

More beach for nudes?

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The city Parks Department is considering an expansion of the city's "swimsuit optional" beach area.

The 900-foot strip of beach is so popular with nude sunbathers that it may be necessary to add another 350 feet to it.

"They tell me on a given day, it is wall-to-wall bodies," said city parks director Ed Mendoza.

PUBLIC NOTICE

NOTICE OF INTENT TO SELL
SCHOOL DISTRICT PROPERTY

RESOLVED, that the Board of Education of the Pomona Unified School District, County of Los Angeles, in an open meeting on May 13, 1975, by a two thirds vote of all its members and pursuant to the provisions of Sections 16051-16065 inclusive of the Education Code, hereby declares its intention to sell at public offering the following described real property:

That portion of Lot 6 in Block 174 of the Pomona Tract, in the City of Pomona, County of Los Angeles, State of California, as per map recorded in Book 3, pages 90 and 91 of Miscellaneous Records, in the office of the County Recorder of said County, described as follows:

Beginning at the intersection of the centerline of Caswell Street, 60 feet wide, with the North line of the South half of said Lot 6; thence South 0 degrees 00' 10" West $5.03 feet along said centerline; thence South 89 degrees 59' 30" East 76.50 feet parallel with said North line; thence North 0 degrees 00' 10" West 55.03 feet, parallel with said centerline to said North line; thence North 89 degrees 59' 30" West 76.50 feet along said North line to the point of beginning.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, that said Board hereby finds the real property described above will not be needed for school classroom buildings.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, that it is the intention of this Board to sell the said property in accordance with the provisions of the Education Code of the State of California upon the following terms.

1. The minimum acceptable bid is $1,016 with no broker's commission allowable.

2. Bids shall be made on a form prescribed by the District which are available at the Education Center of the Pomona Unified School District, 800 South Garey Avenue, Pomona, California 91766.

3. Before accepting any written proposal, the President of the Board shall call for oral bids, in accordance with Section 16061 of the Education Code.

4. Each bidder, written or oral, shall supply with his bid a certified or cashier's check in the amount of $500.00. The checks of unsuccessful bidders will be returned, but the check of the successful bidder shall be retained until escrow instructions are executed by the Pomona Unified School District and the successful bidder. The check shall then be deposited into escrow as part of the purchase price of the property. In the event the successful bidder refuses to enter into an escrow, the bid deposit shall be retained by the Pomona Unified School District.

5. Acceptance and award shall be on the basis of the highest bid. The Board reserves the right to reject any and all bids.

6. The sale shall be consummated by the signing, at the time the Board of Education accepts the bid, of an "Agreement to Buy and Sell," by the Pomona Unified School District, as "Seller", and by the bidder who submits the highest acceptable bid, as "Buyer", which form of agreement is on file in the district administration office.

7. A preliminary title report will be available for inspection of interested parties prior to the date for the opening of bids in the Education Center, Pomona Unified School District, 800 South Garey Avenue, Pomona, California 91766.

8. The "Agreement to Buy and Sell" shall contain the following terms and conditions:

I. ESCROW

(a) Within 10 days after execution of the Agreement to Buy and Sell an escrow shall be opened at a mutually acceptable bonded escrow company.

(b) Within 5 days of opening of escrow, the Seller shall deposit Buyer's bid security.

(c) The term of the escrow shall be 30 days. If at least 10 days prior to the end of such period, Buyer requests Seller in writing for an extension, Seller may grant the extension, if satisfied that Buyer has proceeded in good faith and that an extension would probably enable the escrow to close. Such extension or extensions may be granted by the Board of Education and shall not be denied unnecessarily.

(d) Before close of escrow, Seller shall deposit in escrow a grant deed for a fee title subject to matters which appear of public record. Seller shall further deliver a policy of title insurance in the usual form. In the event of Seller's failure to comply with these conditions, Buyer shall be entitled to rescind the Agreement to Buy and Sell and shall be entitled to return of all amounts paid into escrow, including the deposit described above.

(e) Before close of escrow Buyer shall deposit into escrow the full amount of purchase price less the bid deposit.

(f) Before close of escrow Seller shall obtain a release on the property from the State of California, Office of Local Assistance.

(g) Buyer shall pay for recording of the deed and one-half of the escrow fee; Seller shall pay for one-half of the escrow fee and for all of the policy of title insurance and for revenue stamps.

(h) Buyer shall take the necessary steps to insure all legal requirements are met in respect to zoning and to pay any and all required costs therefore.

(i) Upon failure of the escrow to close as specified in (e) above, the District may cancel the Agreement to Buy and Sell.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, that a public meeting of the Board of Education of the Pomona Unified School District be held at its usual place of meeting in the Board Room of the Education Center at 800 South Garey Avenue, Pomona, California on June 10, 1975, at 7:30 p.m., at which time and place sealed bids will be opened and considered together with oral bids in accordance with California Education Code Sections 16050-16065 inclusive.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, that this notice of intention to sell property described in the foregoing resolution shall be posted and published as provided in Section 16056 of the California Education Code; that the Board reserves the right to reject any or all bids.

PUBLICATION: This notice shall be published once a week for three successive weeks' prior to said meeting in a newspaper of general circulation and shall be posted in three public places in the district not less than fifteen (15) days before the date of the meeting.
